COMMITTEE PUTS O. K. ON SHIP ARMING

Debate on FDR-Sponsored Measure Will Start In House Tomorrow.

FRIDAY PASSAGE SEEN

2-Day Hearing Ends; Members Override G. O. P. Charges of 'Gag' Rule.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary Knox said today that the navy was ready to put guns and gun crews on merchant ships "as fast as the ships come to us" once congress authorizes such action.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The house foreign affairs committee today ordered a favorable report on President Roosevelt's bill authorizing arming of merchant ships to protect them against submarine or air attack.

Members said that the bill was reported out by a voice vote.

The action paved the way for opening debate on the measure in the house tomorrow, with Democratic leaders declaring that it will be passed by Friday night. The senate foreign relations committee is expected to consider it next Monday.

The committee acted after two days of hearings and overrode charges of the Republican minority that "gag" rule was imposed and the bill is being "railroaded" through the house.

Rep. Shanley (D., Conn.) said: "The bill was reported by a voice vote. There was opposition and a minority report will be filed."

Longer hearings and debate in the senate will be sought by the non-interventionists. Eleven members of the senate non-interventionist bloc met with Sen. Hiram Johnson (R., Cal.) to organize for the fight. They announced they would oppose the measure because "it is the first step toward complete repeal of the Neutrality Act."

Rep. Boland, Pa., Democratic whip, said that he was so sure that the house will back Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull on the issue that he is not going to the trouble to make a poll of Democratic members.

The measure, which repeals a section of the Neutrality Act prohibiting arming of ships and then

Pacific Isles Feel Pinch of War, But They're Ready To Contribute Vital Supplies to Defeat of Germans

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Here is the first full, uncensored story of war as it is being felt today in the South Sea islands—the remote, romantic hideaways which even have failed to escape the economic stringencies and bodily hardships of world conflict. The dispatch comes from Papeete on far Tahiti.)

By RAY P. DAVIS

(International News Service Special Correspondent.)

PAPEETE, Tahiti—Every island within a thousand miles of this Pacific paradise is on a full wartime basis today.

The hundreds of dots that sprinkle the ocean from here to the Marquesas, 800 miles nearer California, and the 2,000 miles to Auckland, New Zealand, have not only felt the pangs of war in a reduction of supplies and ships from the white man's world, but are prepared to contribute their share in the defeat of Nazi Germany.

A year ago the flag of Free France was raised over Tahiti in the name of Gen. Charles De Gaulle. Since then the islands that are governed from Papeete—the Gambiers, Tuomotus, Marquesas and the Society islands, have conscripted brown-skinned natives, sent them to Tahiti for elementary training, where they have subsequently been shipped to New Zealand by the hundreds.

They now are lined up side by side with other Free French forces in the Near East. Even the far distant Cook islands and others under the dominion of Great Britain and New Zealand are supplying what they can in manpower.

More than 1,000 soldiers drill daily in the streets of Papeete and a hundred more

BUSHNELL HITS 'FAILURES' OF LOCKE'S REGIME

Raps Traffic Situation, Claims Promises Broken, and Says He'll Be 'Working Mayor.'

Fred M. Bushnell opened his campaign for election as mayor of Mansfield last night with a sharp attack on what he called failures of the present administration and gave his audience the assurance that he will be a "working mayor."

Speaking at a meeting of the Young Democratic club at party headquarters in the Martin Hardware building, Bushnell hit at Mansfield's traffic problem and charged that his Republican opponent, Mayor W. J. Locke, had failed to carry out his campaign promises of two years ago concerning the position of city service-safety director and the engineering department.

"Perhaps you will recall," said Bushnell, "the campaign slogan of the present mayor. He said he would solve the traffic problem. He said he would appoint an engineer as director of service-safety. He said he would revamp the city engineer's office. Has he done any of these things? No."

"At this time," he said, "I want to make this pledge. When I am elected mayor of the city, both myself and my director of service will devote our entire time to the work of operating the city.

"I pledge to divorce myself from any connection with any other business," Bushnell continued, "and will insist that my director do likewise. I also pledge that I will be constantly on the job and will not indulge in any extended vacations or absence from the city."

He obviously referred to the insurance firm with which Mayor Locke is associated and the shoe store with which C. M. Crafton, service-safety director, is asso-

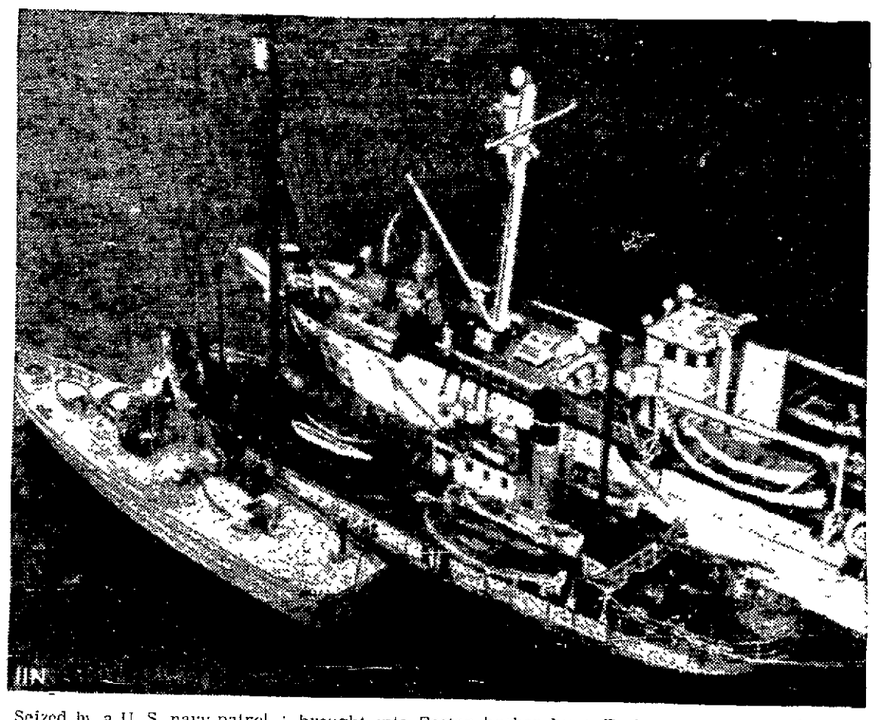
Ship Seized In Greenland Towed to Boston



Seized by a U. S navy patrol in waters near a Nazi short-wave station in Greenland, the Norwegian supply ship Busko is pictured, center, as it was brought into Boston harbor by the U. S. S Bear, right, formerly part of the Byrd Antarctic expedition. Aboard the Busko was the personnel of the German-operated station. The Busko was not armed and no resistance was put up when it was seized. The crew and radio men, an unnamed number, were being held for immigration authorities.

HOLDS CREW OF 'RADIO VESSEL'

U. S. Refuses Bail To 20 Men, One Woman on Seized Nazi Supply Ship.

BOSTON — (AP) — The United States held without bail today the 20-man crew and a woman of the seized Norwegian fishing vessel Busko, described by naval authorities as a supply ship for a now "disposed of" Nazi German radio station in Greenland.

Authorities maintained a close-lipped silence concerning the crew members, who listed themselves as Norwegians, and gave "no hint of what the next move would be.

Brought ashore under escort of a United States naval vessel, the Busko contingent was sent before an immigration service board of inquiry yesterday and charged with entering the United States without proper documents.

Seized off Greenland last month the 60-ton Busko, unkempt and seaworn, was escorted into Boston harbor yesterday. On her decks were electrical apparatus, skis, dog sleds, a husky and a huge black Newfoundland dog.

Sailors, marines, coast guards, custom officers and agents of the federal bureau of investigation boarded her as soon as she was berthed.

RAIL OFFICIAL, 2 OTHERS HURT IN CAR CRASHES

B. and O. Engineer In Willard Hospital; Pedestrians Escape Runaway Trailer.

Three persons including a B and O. railroad official from Newark, were injured in two traffic accidents late Tuesday in the Willard area while a run-away trailer in Mansfield last night narrowly missed several pedestrians as it crashed into a street lamppost at Fourth and Main streets.

Frank D. Batchellor, Newark division engineer for the B. and O. railroad, suffered fractures of two ribs and other injuries Tuesday afternoon when the car in which he was riding figured in a collision with another at the intersection of State Route 13 and U. S. Route 224 near Greenwich. Batchellor is in Willard Municipal hospital.

Arthur W. Colnot, Newark, driver of the car in which Batchellor was riding, was cited in mayor's court at Greenwich for reckless driving, state highway patrolmen said.

W. M. Drew, Attica, and his daughter, Mrs. Edna Meredith of Toledo were injured Tuesday afternoon in a crash on U. S. Route 224 west of Willard. Both were taken to the Willard hospital, but neither was seriously injured, it was said.

Several persons waiting for buses at Fourth and Main streets in Mansfield escaped being hit at 9 p. m. yesterday when a heavy trailer broke loose from a truck headed up Main street and coasted back into a light post at the southwest corner of the intersection.

TESTS STARTED

Doctors Examine Students For T. B. With New Equipment.

X-ray checks to determine tuberculosis infections prevalent among pupils are under way today at Mansfield Senior high school and will continue all this week.

Made possible by a $3,000 gift of an anonymous Mansfield industrialist, the check is being made by physicians, working with the Richland county tuberculosis association. Their findings will be turned over to family physicians for treatment of those infected.

Tests with the new equipment were started yesterday at the high school. On conclusion of examinations there, the equipment will be taken to other Richland county high schools for similar tests.

CALL OFF TANK PARTS WALKOUT

Union Leaders Accede to Plea of Mediation Board; New Negotiations Set.

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT — R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers-CIO, said today the union had called off a strike at the Hillsdale Steel Products company's plant at the request of the defense mediation board. The action ends a dispute which tied up an estimated 70 per cent of army tank production.

The UAW chief said, however, there would be further negotiations with the mediation board in Washington. Efforts to settle the dispute in conferences in Hillsdale struck a snag Monday night.

Production of tank transmissions by the Spicer Manufacturing company of Toledo has been halted for two days by the dispute. The Hillsdale firm, a subsidiary of the Spicer company, manufactures parts used in the transmission assembly.

UAM-CIO members in the Toledo plant declined to handle the Hillsdale parts, contending that the Michigan plant was strike-bound although it resumed normal operations following a riot in which seven men were injured.

The UAW-CIO declared the strike in Hillsdale in protest against the alleged ejection from the plant of a score of CIO employes by members of the rival UAW-AFL. The Hillsdale Steel Products company has an exclusive bargaining agreement with the AFL union.

Farmers Plan 'No Trespassing' Signs For AAA Committeemen.

SANDUSKY — (AP) Ohio farmers opposing the wheat penalty are taking steps to bar from their properties the AAA committeemen who determine acreage allotments.

E. A. Kennedy of Washington, member of the legislative council of the National Marketing Quota Protest association, announced last night that protesting wheat growers would erect next week signs reading: "NOTICE—Positively No Trespassing By Any AAA Committeemen on These Premises."

Committeemen, chosen by counties, visit farms to determine wheat acreage for each and compliance with the AAA program. Under the AAA marketing quota, farmers must pay a 49-cent per bushel penalty on wheat raised in excess of allotments.

Fierce Drive Hits Kalinin Flank Defense

Russians Admit New German Threat to Capital But Assert Parachutists Wiped Out Behind Lines; RAF Batters Western Germany.

(By Associated Press)

A fiercely-driven new menace to Moscow was acknowledged today by the Red army, which declared the Germans were swarming forward over their own heaped dead in a mighty attempt to turn the capital's Volga river defense flank near Kalinin, 95 miles northwest of Moscow.

Admitting that the Nazi masses of men and steel still surged forward, Red Star, organ of the Soviet army, said nevertheless that German parachutists seeking a foothold behind the Russian lines had been wiped out and that Moscow's grim defenders had pinched off wedges thrust deep into their lines.

Some of the parachutists were said to have been trapped behind the Kalinin line where armored units had smashed to the approaches of the city.

Directly west of Moscow, other German forces were reported in London to have rolled half way from Vyazma toward the capital, and to the south the German press said the munitions-making town of Tula, 100 miles from Moscow, had fallen to the tightening Nazi semi-circle.

Red Star declared the Red army's position the most critical of the war, and a high-ranking neutral observer in London commented:

"Hitler for the first time in two years of war has thrown every available gun and tank into one attack. If he fails to take Moscow or destroy the Russian armies in the present drive—and he well may fail—Germany is finished until spring and might well have lost the war."

Britain, under pressure to create a diversion front in the west, battered steadily at western Germany from the air and London sources asserted the RAF offensive was compelling Germany to keep more than 50 per cent of her fighting planes in the west, easing the strain on the Red air fleet.

Authoritative informants in London said it was possible that the German drive on Moscow from the northwest already had engulfed Rzhev, 125 miles from the capital, and that the push past Vyazma apparently had carried as far as Mozhaisk, 60 miles west of Moscow.

The Russians acknowledged that the northwestern fighting had moved in to the approaches of Kalinin, on the upper Volga

DECLARES NAZIS PAYING HEAVILY

Marshall Tells Senators That Germany Loses Materiel In Moscow Drive.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — General George C. Marshall was reported today to have told a senate subcommittee that the German armies were paying a tremendous price in material for the ground gained in the drive on Moscow.

This information was said to have figured in the testimony which the army chief of staff gave when he appeared yesterday before the appropriations subcommittee which is considering the new $5,985,000,000 lease-lend bill.

Marshall avoided any predictions on Russia's chances for success in stemming the great Nazi offensive now in progress.

However, President Roosevelt remarked yesterday that he saw nothing in the present Russo-German military situation to cause him to doubt the success of the United States' lease-lend program.

The president told his press conference that he had no idea yet whether Russia would require assistance under the program, and would not know until he received the report of W. Averell Harriman, head of the United States delegation to the recent

The duke slipped away from Baltimore yesterday for a visit in Washington with Lord Halifax, the British ambassador who was in London when the Windsors were in the capital last month.

OHIO'S EXAMPLE

Bricker Says State Shows Way To Curtail Expenditures.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Joining in a campaign to curtail non-defense federal expenditures, Gov. John W. Bricker says Ohio has set an example by reducing operating costs and foregoing a welfare building program.

Governor Bricker, addressing an Ohio chamber of commerce meeting, said about $1,000,000 of a $5,000,000 appropriation for the building program would be spent for equipment replacements and necessary repairs, but that priorities and a desire to aid the defense program have made new construction unwise at present.

He added that Ohio State university rejected all bids received last week on a proposed $350,000 agriculture laboratory because they exceeded the estimates.

Annual 'Headache' Arrives, Police Chase Pranksters

Mansfield and Richland county police officers started their annual campaign today against Halloween pranksters who already are making the nights miserable for property owners and law enforcement officers.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson and police warned pranksters that any of them caught destroying property or placing obstructions in streets and highways will have to pay for the damage they cause and may face jail sentences.

"We intend to keep the destruction of property at a minimum and whenever there is damage reported and we catch the suspects, some one is going to have to pay for it," Sheriff Robinson said.

Almost nightly this week deputy sheriffs have investigated complaints of pranks in Ontario, East Mansfield, and other suburban communities where property owners said garbage was dumped on porches and houses were smeared with over-ripe vegetables.

Sheriff Robinson said pranksters probably were responsible for the theft of a car owned by George England near Shiloh Monday night. Officials found the car unharmed a short distance from England's home. It was taken from his garage.

Village authorities in New Richmond, an Ohio river town, will try to curb Halloween pranks by enforcing a curfew law enacted in 1898. The curfew bell will ring at 7:30 p. m. every night until Nov. 15, and boys and girls under 16 must be off the streets then unless they have a note from their parents explaining that they are on errands.

AIRMEN KILLED

Four Die In Bomber Crash In Philippine Islands.

MANILA —(AP)— Four army airmen were killed in the crash of their medium bomber at Clark Field in Pampanga province during anti-aircraft practice last night.

Second Lieutenant Rexford R. Kinsley, from Evanston, Ill., the pilot, evidently was blinded by searchlights and lost control of his plane, army officials said. He was a son of Philip Kinsley, veteran member of the Chicago Tribune staff.

Others killed were Privates Robert C. Fankhouser, 22, son of Albert F. Fankhouser of Desplaines, Ill.; Clarence A. Drapich, 21, son of Mrs. Dolly Adams of Eureka, Calif., and Francis Brouillette, 22, son of Mrs. Laura B. Brouillette of Newtonville, Mass.

The bomber and the bodies were almost unrecognizable.

Physicians Call Emasculation 'Doubtful Crime Preventative'

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS— (U.P.) —A concensus of Ohio medical authorities indicated today that emasculation is an uncertain means of preventing sex crimes.

Warden Frank D. Henderson of Ohio penitentiary has revealed that nine prisoners voluntarily have submitted to emasculation operations with the understanding that they would receive favorable consideration of parole applications.

Some already have been paroled and the others expect paroles soon.

Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director, said it is "debatable whether or not such a program is effective."

"I think there are definite possibilities that castration of sex-mad prisoners would make them many times worse than they were before they underwent such an operation," Dr. Markwith said.

"I can't see how castration would be any more effective, that is toward the elimination of sex instincts, than mere sterilization. After all, the castrated man has the same sexual impulses and the same sensations as the normal man."

Lest You Forget, Nov. 20's Thanksgiving Day for Ohioans

Lest you forget—and judging from the number of telephone calls that come to The News-Journal daily, a lot of people do—Ohio will observe Thanksgiving day on Nov. 20, the day designated by President Roosevelt.

Some states, it is true, have decided to observe Nov. 27, the last Thursday in November, as was done before the president decided that retail Christmas business would thrive more if Thanksgiving were moved up a week.

These states, according to the National Association of Advertisers, will observe Nov. 20 as Thanksgiving day:

Ohio, Alabama, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Rhode Island, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

States that will observe the day Nov. 27 are:

Arizona, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas and Vermont.

NAZIS IN NEW SURGE TOWARD RED CAPITAL

Russians Admit New Threat To Capital, Say 'Chutists Are Wiped Out.

"This," said Red Star, organ of the Soviet army, "complicates the situation at the front which is now more serious than at any time.

"Moscow is in danger"

The newspaper declared the Germans were determined to take the city at any cost, but pledged anew that it would be saved, however fierce the onset

German military spokesmen said their forces were squeezing Moscow tighter but reported strong Red army counter attacks at the northern and southern flanks of the front—attacks perhaps designed to relieve the German pressure on the capital.

The Russians were said to have hurled their heaviest tanks into a powerful counter thrust on the southern flank. In the north, German spokesmen said the Russians were beaten back after a strong attempt to fight their way across a lake in a no-man's-land between the battle lines

The German high command said Moscow was raided again overnight by Nazi warplanes

Battlefields and roads were covered by slush as a result of autumnal snow flurries and German commentators said that bad weather and poor roads were handicaps in the drive to the east

The official German news agency, DNB, said Tula, a munitions and railway center with a population of 150,000, was now in German hands. Rumors circulated in the German capital that Rzhev, 125 miles northwest of Moscow, and Borodino, 70 miles to the west, also had been captured or encircled.

Russian troops battled savagely to check extension of the German arc of encirclement in the Kalinin area yesterday, a Soviet communique said, as well as in the older Vyazma and Bryansk sectors. It declared 13,000 invaders had been killed or wounded in the day's actions.

Soviet troops based near Leningrad were declared to have "made a very successful attack against the German troops and destroyed seven batteries, 26 machine-guns, 28 machine-gun firing points (emplacements), 50 motor lorries with infantry and killed 1,500 German soldiers"

The struggle of Moscow's defenders to regain the initiative however, held major attention among Russians

The slaughter was likened by S A. Lozovsky, Soviet vice commissar of foreign affairs, to that of the 1916 battle of Verdun, "concentrated in a smaller time limit here with greater mechanized forces participating" The French admitted nearly 350,000 casualties and the Germans 330,000 in that World war engagement.

"Thousands of bodies of German soldiers, crippled tanks, trucks and motorcycles lie in anti-tank pits and at the approaches to our defenses," a Soviet communique said

German newspaper dispatches conceded that Soviet troops were ruthlessly carrying out Premier Stalin's scorched earth policy when they were forced to fall back.

"As far as the eye can see," a German soldier-reporter wrote, "the line of the Soviet retreat is marked by flaming houses, barns and villages set afire by the Bolshevik soldiery."

British bombers attacked several cities in southern Germany last night to maintain an aid-Russia offensive Berlin acknowledged only immaterial damage and said six raiders were downed

In Washington, the administration's bill to arm United States merchant ships moved toward virtually certain committee approval, with leaders forecasting its passage by the house no later than Friday

In Mexico the chamber of deputies shoved a stumbling block in the path of a proposed colonization of Lower California by 100,000 Smirquists

In a heated debate yesterday the military organization was described as "a shock brigade prepared by Nazi agents" and the chamber asked the president to withdraw approval of colonization on the grounds that might make Lower California a danger spot in the western hemisphere In Japan, where the privy council met in secret session with Emperor Hirohito both Domei news agency with close government connections, and the newspaper Asahi expressed gloomy views of Japanese-United States relations

Domei pointed out United States as guilty of "cold dealing" and of a hostile attitude toward Japan while engaging in negotiations looking toward an accord.

"Japan" Domei declared, is in danger of falling into a trap set by America"

Meanwhile the Tatsuta Maru first of three Japanese ships presuming sailing to the United States, left Yokohama Domei news agency said five Americans and 300 American-born Japanese were aboard—most of them planning to disembark at Honolulu.

Say Attacks Keep Nazi Planes at Home

LONDON—(U P)—British day and night aerial offensives have forced Germany to keep more than 50 per cent of her fighter strength away from the Russian front, the air ministry said today.

The claim followed a communique that despite bad weather last night the Royal Air Force bombed objectives in southern Germany. Four planes were lost

"Germany has found it essential to use more than half of her fighter strength, not against Russia—but in defense against the RAF on the western front," the ministry said.

(In Berlin the official news agency said a few British planes dropped a few explosives and incendiary bombs at several points in southwestern and southern Germany last night causing "insignificant damage")

Germans Prepare New Tobruk Attack

LONDON—(INS)—A London Daily Express dispatch from Cairo reported today that the Germans are preparing for a major attack on Tobruk British-held Libyan seaport

A dispatch from Alan Moorehead special Daily Express correspondent said the Nazis have moved up heavy guns on the Tobruk front and that additional tanks and troops are moving into advance posts

Meanwhile, Moorehead said, American-built tanks and planes are "arriving en masse" and dockers are working 21 hours a day to unload them. . . .

He reported more than 50 American vessels have been unloaded during the past three months.

Italians Report RAF Raid on Benghazi

ROME—(U P) British airplanes raiding the Italian base of Benghazi on the Libya coast, in two waves killed 23 persons and others were wounded the high command said today in a communique

It was said that buildings were damaged, "especially in the Arab quarter"

ciated At the time he accepted the appointment as service-safety director, however, Crafton turned over active direction of the store to an associate

The Democratic candidate charged that "Our present mayor doesn't think it necessary to be in the city and has absented himself on several occasions," said Bushnell. "The place for the head of the city is in the city."

Bushnell claimed that the Democratic party could do more to help Mansfield recover from the blow struck its industries by priorities than any other party.

"As I view it" said Bushnell, "our party is alone in its position to be of aid We are not obstructionists"

Bushnell called attention to the fact that a "city cannot grow beyond its water supply" and added that "Mansfield is now faced with just such a problem"

"We shall have to plan to improve our water supply, or Mansfield will stop growing There is a solution and we Democrats can solve it When we win we will solve it"

Bushnell pledged that he would use his best efforts in an attempt to solve the city's traffic problem, would appoint a director of service who will be useful to every man, woman and child of our city," and would render aid to the city engineer. "I will also maintain close contact and absolute harmony with city council," Bushnell stated.

Following Bushnell's talk Charles H Freehafer introduced the other candidates who gave short talks urging that the club work to help get the vote out on election day Bushnell the candidates and Marshall Moore campaign manager praised the club for establishing headquarters in the Martin building

Looting of Cars Continues, Two More Lose Tires

While detectives detailed by Police Chief M K. Bates continued their investigation into a new wave of automobile accessory thefts which has swept Mansfield the past week, reports of car lootings continued at police headquarters today.

Automobile wheels and tires valued at approximately $65 were taken from the rear compartments of cars belonging to J. M Slattery, 37 Sturges avenue, and Virgil Routsong, 90 Blymyer avenue.

Slattery reported to police late yesterday that his spare wheel and tire had been taken from his 1940 sedan Monday night while it was parked in a garage across the street from his home. The lock of the compartment was taken along with the wheel and tire, Slattery reported, stating that "the job looked like that of a professional" Vaule of the articles was placed at $35

Routsong told police that his tire and wheel, valued at $30, were missing last night when he decided to check up on them. They might have been gone for a week or more, he said, as he had no reason to use them. Routsong indicated that they might have been stolen while the car was parked along the street.

Meanwhile Chief Bates continued to warn motorists to keep their autos locked especially rear compartments where spare tires and wheels are kept He also recommended that motorists park their cars in well-lighted places

The wave of car lootings is blamed by the chief on a Cleveland gang which operates from one city to another returning the stolen accessories to Cleveland where they are sold.

PACIFIC ISLES READY TO HELP

They Feel Pinch of War, But Prepare Vital Supplies To Aid Democracies.

"secret" police in blue uniforms are conspicuous throughout the island. Anti-aircraft guns mounted on caterpillar trucks scour the skies. From several forts high in the hills overlooking the broad Pacific soldiers maintain a 24-hour vigil. Cannon near Papeete harbor are oiled and aimed.

The thousands of islands across this broadest portion of the Pacific are busily contributing supplies and materials. The glycerine obtained from copra, dried meat of the cocoanut, becomes nitro-glycerine and other explosives.

Tahiti's one warehouse, 300 feet long, is bulging with copra for lack of ships to America. Another warehouse is being constructed alongside There is a crying need for ships—any kind of vessel capable of the 3,600-mile voyage

The production of phosphates—a war essential—goes on in various islands, some under the De Gaulle flag and some under the British Union Jack

The immediate result of French Oceania's shipments of war materials has been establishment of a dollar credit in America Essential foods and supplies long unavailable here are beginning to come by ship For three weeks during July Free France in the Pacific had no flour, consequently no bread. Sugar from the one factory in Tahiti is rationed at two pounds per person per month.

Such luxuries as butter and cigarets were unknown on Tahiti and the many islands dependent upon it from July 7 to Sept. 20. Cars are stalled for lack of gasoline. Reasons: No ships—and the fact that goods must be bought with dollar credit, since the franc is valueless on the American market.

There is no escaping the fact that this langorous Pacific, stretching 11,000 miles from Peru to Borneo, is on a full wartime basis

But the islands are doing their part

An important announcement about VITAMINS

HAVEN'T you often wished you could find a vitamin product with fully adequate potencies priced so low you could afford to make it a regular health habit?

Today you can—and the name is VIMMS!

Look at the formula! 3 Vimms a day supply, according to government standards, the entire minimum daily requirements of five Vitamins and Iron, plus ½ the day's requirements of Calcium, about ⅓ of Phosphorus, and protective quantities of another Vitamin.

3 Vimms a day, therefore, are sufficient as a dietary supplement to bring all but the very lowest income group diets up to the optimum levels recommended by the National Research Council. Even the lowest income groups can attain these levels by taking more.

6 Vimms a day, doctors tell us, are a better combination of vitamins and minerals than any ever before available for the protection of pregnant and nursing women.

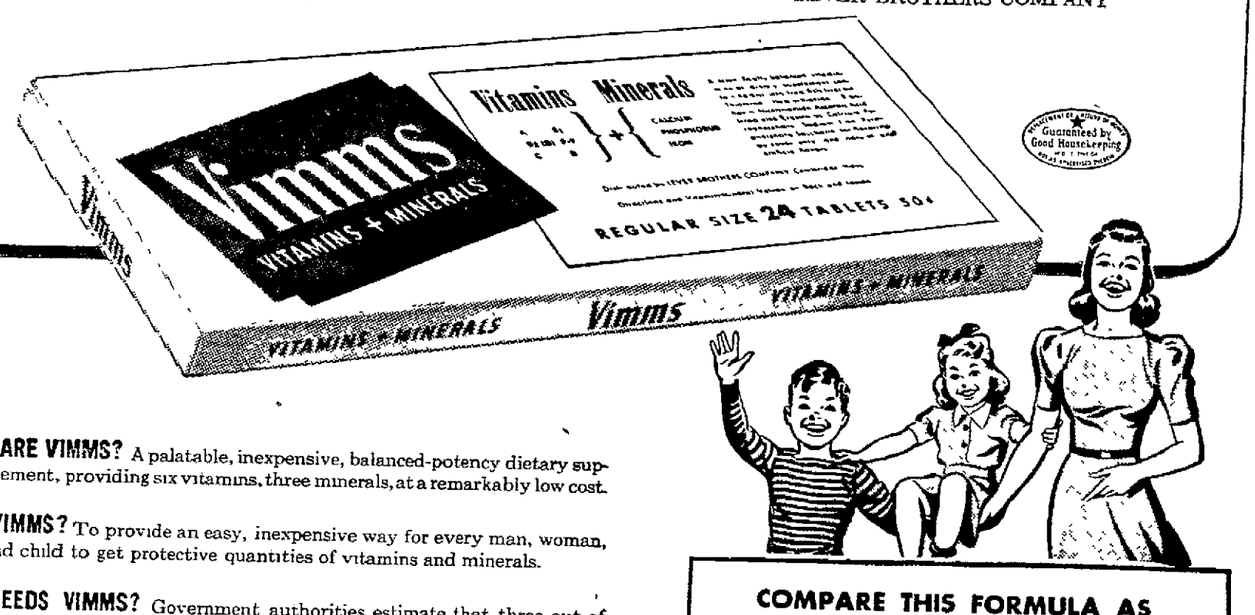
Vimms are a major scientific achievement. 6 essential vitamins and 3 vital minerals have been stabilized in a single tablet. And yet you can purchase Vimms at a price far lower than that of any product comparable in type and potency.

In collaboration with nationally known vitamin authorities, and top-ranking scientists, Lever Brothers' Laboratories have developed the Vimms formula. Vimms are chemically standardized, biologically controlled, and have passed exhaustive and rigid tests.

Vimms have another special advantage—they are not only palatable, but actually easy and pleasant to swallow or eat—no fishy or yeasty taste.

Your druggist is ready with Vimms today—regular size 50c, large economy size package $1.75. We invite you to try them.

LEVER BROTHERS COMPANY



WHAT ARE VIMMS? A palatable, inexpensive, balanced-potency dietary supplement, providing six vitamins, three minerals, at a remarkably low cost.

WHY VIMMS? To provide an easy, inexpensive way for every man, woman, and child to get protective quantities of vitamins and minerals.

WHO NEEDS VIMMS? Government authorities estimate that three out of four Americans need more vitamins and minerals. Sometimes they don't know enough about vitamins to choose the right foods; sometimes they don't care enough; and sometimes modern methods of food distribution, food processing and preparation have robbed foods of valuable quantities of the vitamins and minerals they should supply.

Vimms make up the difference—between the food people eat (according to government dietary studies) and National Research Council recommended allowances. 3 Vimms a day are designed to bring the diet of all but the very lowest income groups up to optimum vitamin and mineral levels. Even the lowest income groups can attain these levels by taking more.

HOW MANY VIMMS? Three Vimms a day supply the entire adult minimum requirements of five vitamins, plus another vitamin of the B-complex (nicotinamide) and protective quantities of three vital minerals. Six Vimms a day, prominent doctors have said, are a better combination of vitamins and minerals than anything ever before available for the protection of pregnant women and nursing mothers.

WHO MAKES VIMMS? Vitamin experts, working with Lever Brothers' Laboratories, have developed the formula. Vimms are chemically standardized, biologically controlled, and are manufactured under the most rigid control, with especially designed equipment. They are presented by Lever Brothers Company, one of America's great food companies.

WHERE ARE VIMMS? At local drug stores right now—in a convenient package, each tablet individually sealed. Two sizes—regular and large economy—both priced lower than any product comparable in type and potency.

COMPARE THIS FORMULA AS TO MINERALS AND VITAMINS

Each day's ration supplies the entire minimum adult requirement of five Vitamins and Iron, plus protective quantities of Vitamin P-P (Nicotinamide); over ½ the minimum daily requirements of Calcium; and about ⅓ the requirements of Phosphorus.

Remember! Like all other foods, vitamin products differ widely. Look at the Vimms label carefully. Note that Vimms provide six essential vitamins—not just one or two—that potencies are fully adequate in even the most costly vitamins (B_2 and C)...that Vimms also combine generous quantities of three vital minerals.

HERE'S WHAT YOU GET IN 3 VIMMS A DAY:

VITAMIN A	4000 USP units
VITAMIN B_1 (Thiamine Chloride)	1000 micrograms (333 USP units)
VITAMIN B_2 (Riboflavin)	2000 micrograms (666 S-B units)
VITAMIN P-P (Nicotinamide)	10,000 micrograms
VITAMIN C (Ascorbic Acid)	50,000 micrograms (1000 USP units)
VITAMIN D	400 USP units
CALCIUM	394 milligrams
PHOSPHORUS	226 milligrams
IRON	10 milligrams

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1941.

This is the time of year to keep in mind that there are only so many shopping days until Christmas.

Strange, but the most inveterate of slot machine addicts seem to be the ones who could use the money to advantage in some other way.

Once upon a time, not so long ago, many people were confidently repeating: "Every day, in every way, we are getting better and better."

Start Made Toward Inflation

SUCH a discussion of "war financing and control of prices" as is given by Herbert F. Fraser, who has devoted much study to the subject of economics, tends to reveal the intricacies of present national problems and explains the difficulties being encountered by administration visionaries and politicians who are now being entrusted with handling billions of dollars of public money.

Desperate efforts to avoid disastrous inflation without establishing effective price control is one example of the inepitude of persons unqualified for the positions of high responsibility in which they have been placed.

It requires no great knowledge of economics to understand that earlier action of the administration in pegging the gold price at almost double its value, and burying a huge gold reserve at this artificial price was a first step toward inflation—taken long before needs of the defense program arose.

While the urgency of defense and aid expenditures at this particular time surmounts all other considerations, and additional billions must be poured into the federal treasury to pay a part of these costs, it seems not too much to ask that the executive and legislative departments of government put aside partisan politics and expediency, for the duration of the emergency, and act in the interests of the majority, instead of being too strongly influenced by minority pressure groups which are being catered to at the expense of the general welfare.

Merchants Who Invite Your Trade

PECULIAR variations in the reactions of retail merchants toward changes necessitated by the national defense program are noted in the newspaper advertising in a number of cities.

Most evident, at this time, is an inclination on the part of some foresighted merchants in practically every prosperous city to use more advertising space than would ordinarily have been done.

This results from their recognition that increased employment and enlarged buying power means greater demands for merchandise of all kinds and it is their intention to go after this business in the only dependable way they know of—newspaper advertising.

Regardless of restrictions that have already been placed on production of some kinds of consumer goods, or that may yet be ordered, it should be kept in mind that a large percentage of commodities which form the volume of retail selling will continue to be available and that more people will have more money with which to buy than has been the case for a number of years.

One sure thing is that many factories will be kept busy making merchandise for general use—and that stores will continue to have it for sale. A safe prediction is that progressive Mansfield merchants will have ample and varied stocks to meet fall, winter and holiday demands. And it is also safe to assume that in Mansfield, as in other modern cities, you can depend on newspaper advertising to direct you to the stores that invite your patronage and have stocks of merchandise designed to meet your needs.

Would Retard Medical Progress

A BILL is pending in congress, and agitation is underway in a number of communities, to abolish or seriously curtail the use of animals in scientific laboratories.

The humanitarian motives of those who support legislation of this character are of the best. And there can be no question but what animal experimentation should be restricted, by law, to genuine scientific institutions which are staffed by men of science. But, to completely abolish animal experimentation would be to deliver a serious blow to medical progress.

In a recent editorial, the Chicago Tribune said: "The prevention of smallpox, yellow fever, typhus and lockjaw, the treatment of pneumonia, syphilis, scarlet fever, anemia, bubonic plague, gall bladder ailments and gastric ulcer, new technics in surgery, the whole range of vitamins and hormones, the marvelous anesthetic ethylene—all these and many other medical discoveries owe their debt to animal experimentation . . ."

In practically all instances, animals used for experimentation are anesthetized and undergo no suffering. The medical evidence which results is being used to create new weapons to fight those diseases, such as cancer, which have not yet been controlled, and which cause untold agony and death to mankind. Science cannot guess—it must know. And experimentation in laboratories is the only road to sure knowledge.

Discord In Detroit Symphony

AN IDEA of the meaning of the old expression, "killing the goose that lays the golden eggs," is gained from the Detroit Symphony orchestra episode now being enacted.

It appears that the orchestra season was cut to 21 weeks eight years ago, so as to make income meet outgo, and that musicians are now contending for extension of the season to its former length, under instructions from the National Federation of Musicians.

The management declares it is financially impossible to extend the season—but the musicians are apparently not interested in this technicality.

While the cultural advantages of a symphony orchestra cannot be doubted, it takes a considerable stretch of imagination to regard such an organization as a civic necessity and it is quite possible that Detroiters could live through the winter without the customary 21 weeks of symphony music.

That new federal agency—Office of Facts and Figures—will be alphabetically designated as OFF—but it may be hoped that it will be only slightly that way.

It appears that Brooklyn is now giving Mickey Owen "a great big hand"—but too late to help him when he needed it to catch that third strike.

TIME TO GET OFF THE FENCE

Seek Proper Peace at War's End

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

DEFEATING Hitler is recognized by the state department as today's most important business. The department is at a deal of pains, however, to emphasize its opinion that licking him is no more important now than the job of fixing up the right kind of world-wide peace will be, after he's licked.

State Undersecretary Sumner Welles does most of the public speaking on the subject, but there's no question that he expresses Secretary Cordell Hull's views as well as his own.

Secretary Hull's thesis during his whole career, in the house of representatives, the senate and the department of state, has been that it's a fatal mistake for nations to try for economic advantages over one another—bad for 'em collectively and, in the long run, bad for the nations, individually, that actually succeed in gaining seeming, but inevitably temporary advantages in their own apparent favor.

That's exactly the doctrine that Undersecretary Welles is preaching at present. He remarks that it wasn't the prevailing international philosophy after the last war, though, and that, he says, is what made such a fizzle out of the ensuing so-called peace. And what he fears is that, at the current conflict's end, "special interests and pressure groups in this country and elsewhere again will selfishly and blindly seek preferences for themselves and discrimination against others."

Don't I know what happened in the late 19-'teens and early 1920's!

I was living in Latin America in those days, running an English-language weekly newspaper of my own. It was dependent upon local Yankee traders' advertising, and it had a lot of it, for the war had driven all the Latins' buying in our direction; they couldn't get their necessary imports from anywhere else.

We Closed the Door.

If we'd had the sense of a jacksnipe we could have kept all those customers in perpetuity. Instead we passed the Smoot-Hawley tariff, closing our markets against Latin products, correspondingly making it impossible for the Latins to pay for what they needed from us, knocking international exchange rates into a cocked hat and ending the whole thing. Thereupon my paper busted and I came home.

Now we're straining ourselves to rebuild in that same field, but we wouldn't have to rebuild if we hadn't torn down.

By the way, Sumner Welles was in the diplomatic service in Latin America just when I was there, saw precisely what I saw and fully understands what he's talking about.

His obvious scheme's to head off any more Smoot-Hawley-ism in advance. And he may succeed, because the last war and what followed it are recent enough not to be forgotten by large numbers of folk. Nevertheless, he's well advised to rub his idea in thoroughly.

There also is talk, here and there, to the effect that there mustn't be any revenge motive, on the democracis' part, at the next peace table, as undoubtedly there was, in the Allies' minds, at Versailles. International President Zeke Hopkins dwelt on this point at a recent Washington meeting of his organization, the Civitan club.

Distinction?

But what I ask is:

Is it going to be possible for the democratic delegates at the next peace conference, supposing Hitler to be licked, to draw a distinction between Adolf and Germans generally? It's true, he isn't a German, but an Austrian. The Germans fell for him, though. Will the democrats be able to forgive 'em for that—to say, "The Germans are alright; Adolf's the only miscreant?"

I can imagine the Italians as being pardoned for Mussolini. But the Germans for Hitler? Oh, my!

Indeed, if Adolf's licked, what'll be done with him, anyway? Will he be permitted to retire to some Doorn for the rest of his life? I've my doubts if he isn't disliked worse than Bill Hohenzollern was. Maybe the Germans themselves will attend to him.

Listen World!

Plea for the Unborn

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

GRIM DAYS ahead, no one knowing where we'll land, everyone wondering what will come next. S'pose you were young, healthy, recently married . . . with a good job apiece . . . lots of freedom, friends and fun.

WOULD YOU RISK IT ALL BY HAVING A BABY?

Thousands of young people are asking that question today. Yes, perhaps some of them are a little selfish, a little cowardly. Some of them may be saying one word for junior, one hundred for themselves. Nevertheless it's a plenty serious quiz and deserves a serious answer. So:

"IS IT FAIR TO BRING A BABY INTO AN UPSET WORLD?"

But babies have always been born into an upset world!

There has never been an era of total peace or security in human society. Since this earth was created, it has been growing. Growth means change. Change means dislocation, disorder, discomfort, danger. Every babe who has entered this world found these conditions just as his parents did before him. Always he found a challenge facing him . . . a burden waiting him . . . a risk ahead of him.

Looking back through the softening glaze of time, you think the bygone years were safe and easy . . . you believe that Dad and Mom had a snap in their youth. But they weren't . . . and they didn't. Relatively speaking, your Father and Mother faced as tough tests in their youth as you are facing now.

Cost? Of course it cost, plenty! But where would America be today if the Pilgrim Fathers and Mothers had sat around plucking daisy leaves . . . and waiting for Lady Luck to give them the high sign? And where will America be tomorrow if the newlyweds of 1941 prove to be a bunch of playboys and playgirls who just can't be bothered?"

Last night I listened in on a domestic rumpus. The Kid, who's about to be inducted, was telling his veteran Dad how soft they had it 'way back in 1917. Dad was equally intent on showing his offspring how tough those old days were without all these modern luxuries. 'Twasn't five minutes before they both were so worked up they choked.

Arguments like that are going on everywhere in America. Both of them are wrong, of course. Neither generation had anything on the other when it comes to Hard Knocks. It's all a matter of perspective . . . as it always was and always will be.

But what of it? THE GREATEST BIRTHDAY GIFT YOU CAN GIVE ANY RED-BLOODED CHILD IS A CHALLENGE. A CHALLENGE SO NOBLE, SO TALL THAT IT WILL LAST HIM ALL HIS DAYS. FACING CHALLENGES . . . MEETING RISKS . . . BEARING BURDENS . . . THESE ARE ALL PART OF THE GRAVEST AND MOST GLORIOUS HONOR LIFE CAN BESTOW UPON US . . . THE HONOR OF BEING A MAN.

Fair to bring a baby into an upset world? Well, I don't know what Junior would say about it if he could have a vote. But from watching his reactions after he has arrived, I've a hunch that he'd far rather have human life, however hazardous, than be any kind of a placid pig or contented cow.

Life risky? Of course it is! But a risky life isn't the worst peril a babe can face. It's lack of life that will keep him and his might-have-been parents on the black-out list. So I'm saying:

Given health and hope, courage, love and faith, you're a piker if you DON'T bring that baby into this upset world! 'Tisn't fair—either to the baby or to yourself, for you are barring both him and yourself from the noblest loveliest adventure human life can know . . . the miracle of birth!

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Hitler Realizes U. S. In Earnest, Warning Withheld By Ribbentrop

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Word trickling back to the diplomatic corps from Germany indicates that Hitler finally is beginning to realize that the United States means business, and that he made a tragic mistake in not accepting the advice of his more conservative diplomats who warned him of this in the first place.

In fact, the inside story, which now can be told, is one of the most tragic of the war. Possibly if it had not been for overweening personal jealousies the war might even have been prevented.

What happened was that when Hans Dieckhoff, German ambassador to Washington, returned to Berlin in 1938, he brought back a strong report that the United States would enter the war eventually if Germany became the aggressor. He was ready to warn that Germany faced a repetition of 1917-18. But Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop would not let him see Hitler.

Ribbentrop, probably the most ambitious man around der fuehrer and a great friend of Himmler, wanted to be the funnel for all advice going to Hitler. Also he was feeding him his own kind of aggressive advice, not the cooling caution of Ambassador Dieckhoff.

In the same cautious school with the ambassador were Baron von Neurath, recently ousted as governor of Czechoslovakia because of his moderate views; Hjalmar Schacht, governor of the Reichsbank, now in virtual retirement; and Captain Fritz Wiedemann, Hitler's former commander and more recently consul general at San Francisco. Even Field Marshal Goering was much more moderate than von Ribbentrop.

Czech Putsch Delayed.

IT WAS Captain Wiedemann who, around May 1938, chiefly persuaded Hitler not to invade Czechoslovakia. He was then Hitler's military aide and attended a meeting of der fuehrer's inner advisers at which general staff officers advised caution. Finally Hitler, exasperated, threw up his arms and ordered them all out of the room. But Wiedemann stayed behind, and finally persuaded his chief to delay the march into Czechoslovakia at least until the fall of 1938—which was done.

Later, it was Wiedemann and the moderates who persuaded Hitler to receive Chamberlain and Daladier at Munich. But by this time it was too late for Ambassador Dieckhoff to tell his story.

Ribbentrop never forgave Wiedemann for this. Also his vaunting ambition would permit no rival close to Hitler. So, shortly thereafter, he got Wiedemann transferred to a distant and relatively unimportant German consulate in the U. S. A. Later when Wiedemann was deported from this country, it is significant that Ribbentrop once again transferred him as far as possible from Berlin—this time to Tientsin, China. He remained in Berlin only two or three days.

The foreign minister of Germany wants no moderates around his leader.

Note—During the last war Wiedemann was a lieutenant with the 16th Bavarian Infantry and one day, while retreating under fire, the debris of a crumbling building fell on one of his men, burying him. The young lieutenant leaped back, and despite heavy shell fire, pulled the man out. He was Adolf Hitler. What would have happened to the world if it had not been for Wiedemann's heroism?

Capital Chaff.

HENRY WALLACE'S SPAB is making a careful check of the 56 big corporations which handle 78 per cent of all defense orders. There is a suspicion that the big boys are hoarding some vitally needed raw materials which should be spread out among other industries. . . . Wallace's Economic Defense Board is checking reports that priorities have been dished out too liberally to the British. . . . Floyd B. Odlum's Division of Contract Distribution is getting off to a good start. In the first 15 days of operation it spread out $54,000,000 in sub-contracts compared to $28,000,000 during 15 days of August under the old system.

America First's Orders.

INSIDE reason for the secret pow-wow of congressional isolationists, the day after the president's special message, was to get the party line cue from the America First committee on how to vote on arming merchant ships.

The information was delivered by John T. Flynn, the committee's principal mouthpiece on Capitol Hill. Flynn didn't cut any corners in laying down the line against any change in the neutrality law.

"A vote to arm merchant ships," he declared, "is a vote to get this country into war. The America First committee is opposed to this or any other revision of the Neutrality Act."

All but one of the 60 senate and house members present either concurred or kept silent. Amazingly, the lone dissenter was one of America First's most vociferous supporters—Representative Ham Fish. The New Yorker declared he favored arming merchantmen, provided they "remain in neutral waters."

Another conflict arose when Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, who acted as chairman, announced that he planned to vote for the $5,895,000,000 lend-lease bill. Senator Bob LaFollette jumped to his feet.

"I'll have to take issue with you on that, Mr. Chairman," snapped the Wisconsinite. "I intend to oppose every piece of legislation the administration offers on foreign policy from now on. They're all calculated to get us into war. I'm going to be against everything."

"That goes for me, too," loudly echoed Senator Bennett Clark, Missouri's bitter-end isolationist.

Fancy Wrappings.

IT WILL happen so gradually that you won't notice it for a while, but those fancy wrappings and elaborate cardboard containers are scheduled to disappear for the duration. Where they don't disappear entirely, substitutes will take their place.

Reason is a growing shortage of paper and cardboard. Fifty-three per cent of all paperboard is now going to defense industries and the amount is increasing.

To meet the situation, Norbert McKenna, New York banker, brought into OPM by Raw Material Chief William Batt, has ordered drug, chemical, cosmetic and soap manufacturers drastically to reduce the use of cardboard containers.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I ran into Jeb Glib on Broadway the other night. It was the first time I had seen him since the Hauptmann trial. I glanced hastily into his peepers to see if his glass eye was still intact. It was. That eye was a spell-binder. Jeb used to exhibit it without warning, just to hold the crowd's interest.

I said, "Jeb, how's the hobbies?"

Hobbies were meat and bread to him. They were to Jeb what winning friends and influencing people is to Dale Carnegie. Any man who didn't have a hobby was no good in Jeb's book. "Look in the penitentiaries and you will see men who didn't know what to do with themselves," Jeb says. Jeb always contended that the absence of hobby-interest in a man was a sign of depravity.

* * *

ONE night I heard him deliver one of his pet lectures in Greenwich Village. The lecture was free. Of course, if you wanted to drop a quarter in the old hat, that was another matter. It was at this meeting I got my first glimpse of Jeb's glass eye. He paused in the middle of one of his harangues and removed it. The audience was stunned. Jeb studied the eye critically with his one good peeper and hauled out a hankie and gave the phoney orb a vigorous shining. Then he crammed it back into place and continued his lecture. From there in you could have heard a rumor drop. Men and women stared at Jeb as in a trance. They were not enchanted by the flow of his ideas, which were many and picturesque. They were horrified by his glass eye.

"It never fails," Jeb said. "Show 'em the eye—and they're yours as long as you want 'em."

I MADE a careful note of Jeb's natty attire. He was garbed in the best tradition of I-follow-the-horses. The suit he wore was a gray-green check. From his rather high collar exploded a violent red bow tie. He wore tan yellow shoes that buttoned up the side. Not many people turned to stare at him as we sauntered along. You see a lot of freaks on Broadway, and the crowd probably figured he was a ballyhoo man, advertising an act.

I said, "Jeb, it's none of my business, and I don't want to be personal—but where in the world did you find those shoes!"

"Eighth Avenue," said Jeb Glib. "It gets 'em every time. Walk down the street in these—and they're yours as long as you want 'em."

BESIDES, he added, he liked button shoes. One of his hobbies was collecting the pearl buttons off old high button shoes. He said he owned two buttons from the shoes of the late Maurice Barrymore, and he had a button from the spats of the late Gentleman Jim Corbett.

Jeb Glib was a character who loved the crowd, and in his funny way he could spell-bind a crowd or an individual. What he does now for a living he did not say. When I knew him six or seven years ago he lived by his wits, which was the only way he had ever lived, and, by his standards, he lived well.

A Farmer's Diary

Providence Gully

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TRAVELING across the state of Alabama, a few years ago, I talked with a tall ungainly Alabaman, who told me an unforgettable tale. I had inquired what things of interest might be found in that locality.

"Just 40 miles east of here," he said, "there's a natural land formation that's as wonderful as Grand Canyon or the Bad Lands of South Dakota, but the way it happened isn't so mysterious. My father lived over there before I was born, and he was plumb done washed out. He came to this town and got a job in a lumber mill."

"But what kind of a formation is it?" I inquired.

"That's right—I ain't told you. Well, more'n 60 years ago, an old farmer who was kindo' careless, rented a farm high on a slope. The land was poor—but renters had allus left grass grow below the house and barn to pasture the mules, so that this strip became the best on the whole place.

"This renter plowed that field, and cultivated it around the hill. He had durn good corn because he kept it clear of weeds. Mebbe if one of the fellow's mules had died, or his wife had got sick, so that more grass'd come up in that field dad would be livin' there now. But the fall rains came and a storm blowed the spoutin' off the eaves on the lower side and all winter the water from that barn roof went dashin' down over that open field. It made a gully that got deeper right along. The renter moved off, and the buildings were vacant.

Every year the ditch got wider and deeper until it finally took all the buildings. In 30 years it swallowed up a country schoolhouse, 600 yards away, and a cemetery high on a hill where 50 folks were buried, was unearthed—and it wasn't a resurrection, either!

"In 60 years that gully got over 200 feet deep and a mile and a half wide. It ruined 500 thousand acres of farm land and 50 thousand farmers lost their homes. It looks like if the state government don't take a hand, sometime they'll wake up and find the best part of Alabama moved out to the Gulf of Mexico—if it ain't there now."

"And what did you say the name of the place was?" I inquired.

"Providence Gully—the biggest example of erosion we know of anywheres."

Revenue Made Available To Carry Out Legislation Passed By Council.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley announced today that County Auditor Norman Wolfe had approved the appropriation by city council of $3,389 supplemental funds to carry out several pieces of legislation passed by council at its meeting Oct. 7.

Approved were the following appropriations: $250 from the general fund for stationery and printing in the Municipal court, $250 from the general fund for incidentals and surety bond of the Municipal court, $1,500 from the gasoline tax fund for materials for various street repairs, $494.93 from the gasoline tax fund for the city's share of the cost of repaving West Fourth street, $400 from the parking meter fund to pay the parking meter collector's salary, and $495 from the parking meter fund for the purchase of traffic signs and paint.

PLUMBERS TO MEET FRIDAY

Examining Board To Explain New City Ordinance.

Mansfield plumbers will meet in the Municipal courtroom Friday evening to hear the Mansfield Plumbers' Examining board explain the new provisions of the city's plumbing ordinance.

Fred Haag, city plumbing inspector, said that the new ordinance will not call for many changes in plumbing regulations but that some adjustment is needed for the issuance of licenses. Although most of the plumbers will continue to use their present licenses until the end of the year, others may be required to pass examinations to obtain new certificates.

Judge Appoints New Deputy for Municipal Court

Miss Marjorie Rhoads, 87 Bartley avenue, has been named deputy clerk of the Mansfield Municipal court to succeed Miss Isabel Gerstmyer, who will be married on Oct. 25.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch announced the new appointment today. Miss Rhoads is the daughter of the late C. E. Rhoads, former city auditor. She will assume her new duties next Monday.

Miss Gerstmeyer will become the bride of Howard Niggles of New Castle, Pa. She has served as deputy clerk since Jan. 1, 1936.

Miss Rhoads is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and Mansfield Business Training school. She has been employed with the Lumbermans Mutual Insurance company for the past five years. The court post pays $125 monthly.

MEET ON STATE DEFENSE PLAN

Judge To Confer With State Director on Program For Civilian Tasks.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, general chairman of Mansfield's civilian defense committee, was in Columbus today conferring with Courtney Burton, state executive civilian defense director, to obtain information about the state defense program.

Kalbfleisch, before leaving, said that he would ask Burton for information about the state's plans to speed and co-ordinate civilian defense and would also inquire of the possibility of state financial aid to local groups.

The local committee has already had one meeting and plans to have another as soon as state and federal civilian defense organizations have been consulted.

A regional director of the federal civilian defense plan is expected to visit the city within the next few weeks to confer with Kalbfleisch and committee members.

Following a survey of other defense plans in the state, the committee expects to call for volunteers to serve as fire watchers, air raid wardens, first aid workers and for other wartime posts.

You can do it if you try!

POISED here as if for take-off is the gorgeous new creation which is the Buick SUPER for 1942.

It is, as you see, entirely new and fresh in line and aspect – low and sweeping, clean of contour, solid as a combat car but graceful as a plane.

It is more than that, for here in durable metal is living proof that an old American tenet still holds true – you can do it if you try!

We had access to no materials in the building of this car that are not available to every other car builder.

But just put foot to treadle and let this big Buick valve-in-head straight-eight wing you up to a realization of what skill and ingenuity can contrive.

Drive it long and hard through a busy day – see not only how its tireless all-coil springs keep you rested, but how its frugal Compound Carburetion holds your gas mileage up where it belongs.

Push it, force it through the toughest going. It will take all you can give it and be ready for more, quicker than you can believe.

Why? Because the things that make some people say there could be no new 1942 models made Buick engineers resolve that if there were to be any new cars, they would be better ones.

So they bring you now the Buick SUPER, style leader of a line of no less than twenty-three sparkling new models.

These distinguished and serviceable cars are all ready for you to see at your Buick dealer's.

MARIE KALBFLEISCH RE-ELECTED REGENT

Election of Officers Held at Annual Meeting of Daughters of Isabella Held Last Evening In Club Rooms; Honor Bride-Elect.

MISS MARIE KALBFLEISCH was re-elected regent of the Daughters of Isabelle at a meeting held Tuesday evening in the club rooms in the Bird building. Other officers named were Miss Marie Hecht, past regent; Miss Eva Mayer, vice regent; Mrs. Clarence Stuhldreher, financial secretary; Miss Geraldine Madden, recording secretary; Miss Martha Grassbaugh, treasurer, and Mrs. Joe Mayer, chancellor.

Mrs. Frank Kmetz was named custodian; Mrs. William Rathburn, auditor; Mrs. G. C. Wehinger, first guide; Mrs. John Daley, jr., second guide; Mrs. James Sertell, banner bearer; Mrs. Oscar Shoup, inner guard; Mrs. Louis Murphy, outer guard; Mrs. A. E. Weakland, scribe, and Mrs. Vernard Kinstle, organist.

Mrs. John Daley, sr., a past regent, will install the officers Nov. 11 at a business meeting in the club rooms. Plans were completed for a rummage sale which will be held Oct. 30-31 at 17 East Sixth street. The club members presented a gift to Miss Isabel Gerstmyer, bride-elect. Mrs. Frank Loykovich will be in charge of the social meeting being held Oct. 28. Miss Mary Rizzo was in charge of the meeting Tuesday. Dinner was served at 6:30 p. m. from long tables decorated with fall flowers.

Couple Tells of Wedding Oct. 10 In Defiance

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Duvall, route 6, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Maxine Duvall, to Gerald Riebel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Riebel of New Washington. The couple was married Oct. 10 at the parsonage of the Lutheran church in Defiance by Rev. O. G. Hebeftreit.

Mrs. Riebel was attired in a beige ensemble with brown accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of red rose buds. She is a graduate of Springfield high school. Mr. Riebel is a graduate of New Washington high school and is employed at the Ideal Electric company. The couple has returned from a short wedding trip and is temporarily residing with the bride's parents.

Friends and relatives of the couple honored them at a party Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duvall. Cards and games were diversions of the evening. Luncheon was served at a long table decorated with a three-tiered wedding cake and lighted tapers. The guests presented the honored couple with a gift of china.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

For a few seconds, that seemed hours, I sat motionless in my chair before Lillian's writing desk, with my eyes glued to the message from Marion which had sent her mother out on her bizarre night expedition.

"I am going to be married, Mummy, and I want you to be there," the message read

This after days of unexplained absence from college and home! Coupled with Lillian's knowledge that the last person seen with Marion, as reported by Mrs. Ticer, was unmistakably of the gangster type, no wonder Lillian had collapsed!

I knew that the news of her idolized daughter's death would not have so crushed her as did this apparent proof that the girl had gone voluntarily into depths from which it would be impossible to raise her.

Seeks Clues In Code.

But the knowledge which I had gained from the little code book of Marion's childhood, and from the perusal and interpretation of the cryptic letter which Marion had written to her fiance, Ronald Brixton, after her disappearance, gave me hope.

Hastily I ran over the wording of the code book which I had just memorized in the library downstairs, and then mentally laid the book down beside me while I took up Marion's letter with fingers that I could not keep entirely steady.

"Deerest, darlingest Mummy!" it began, and my eyes rested, fascinated, upon that first misspelled word.

I had seen other letters from Marion to Lillian—she generally passes them over to me for perusal when I am with her—and with a lump in my throat I remembered how proud she was of those long letters from Weirhampton. Always Marion had begun the letters with these identical words, but never, in any I had seen, had she misspelled "Dearest."

According to the code book misspelled words clearly meant that the sentences between them were to be read with exactly their opposite meaning

Meaning All False.

Then this "Deerest" at the very beginning must mean that the false meaning began at once. My pulses quickened as I went on to the next words.

"I am so terribly, terribly happy, darling Mummy," the letter went on, "that I could fly up to the clouds. The only thing that spoils it all is that I know you must be worrying about me

"I've been terible, I know, to keep you waiting so long for news of me, but I coodn't help it. And I did send you a message by Auntie Madge when I telephoned her from Mrs. Ticer's, but I coodn't give you my big neds then —there were reesons"

My pulses pounded again at this misspelled word, for it came just before the unbelieveable sentence "I am going to be married, Mummy, and I want you to be there," which had leaped to my eyes when I first opened the letter

And then, following that astounding sentence, came another from the code book.

"I know this will surprize you, Mummy. It surprises me. But I can't help myself This thing is to strong for me"

Forced to Write Letter.

From my memory of the code book and the other letter came the translation of this one.

"If the words 'This thing is too strong for me has the word 'too' spelled 'to'" Marion had written in the extra sheets of the code, "then it means 'I am being forced to write this'."

I sent up an ardent paean of thanks. I already had two bits of comfort for Lillian The "news" Marion had given her was false. She was not going to be married. And she was being forced to write the letter

"Oh, this is wonderful!" I exclaimed.

SEMPER FIDELIS CLUB.

Mrs. Andrew Sunkel, Park avenue east, entertained all members of the Semper Fidelis club at her home Tuesday evening. Bingo was the diversion with prizes won by Mrs. Harley Humphrey and Mrs. Clyde Smith. At a late hour a luncheon was served with appointments in keeping with the Halloween season. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Mary Curtin, Dawson avenue, Oct. 28.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

BEWARE OF LONG SUITS

IF THE BIDDING is at all strange, indicating the probable possession of extremely long suits by your opponents, you may find during the play that any honors of yours in side suits are worthless. They may get trumped because the declarer has a void in your suit, in either his own hand or the dummy. Doubling at such a time may not only increase the value of a score he would tally anyway, but may enable him to make his contract which otherwise you could beat.

What a sad story this deal was for East, who counted on taking one trick with his spade A, and therefore decided that a double was a good way to shoot for top on the hand in a social duplicate. West decided to lead his spade 6, so that the 10 forced the A, and South ruffed.

From there on South could run five more tricks in clubs, six in diamonds and one in hearts. He even held two more heart tops and two spade tops, which he of course could not use, as 17 trick-takers can never take more than 13 tricks unless you change the rules of the game.

East should have considered himself amply warned by the bidding to keep his mouth shut. After South's 1-Diamond, a bid like North's 2-No Trumps would normally be followed by only 3-Clubs, as that would be sure to stay open But South had made the rare bid of a jump after a jump. This would have made anybody think the two suits were of at least five cards in length. When North then went soaring to 5-No Trumps and South bid 6-Clubs, that should have made it sound like a couple of six-carders, plus a singleton and a void. East's double was very bad in those circumstances, especially since it might have made his partner think he wanted to trump diamonds and so might have caused a lead of that suit.

How many tricks should South take on this deal, playing at 4-Hearts, if the defenders offer him a perfect defense?

HARTFORD CIRCLE.

Fourteen members of the Hartford Circle, United Brethren church, and one guest, Mrs. Russell Indorf, were present Tuesday evening for the meeting of the group. Mrs. Geraldine Banks, Davey avenue, was hostess. Devotions were led by Mrs. Fuller Dunson and Misses Carrie Lucas and Naomi Johnson favored with a vocal duet. Plans were discussed for Women's Missionary day to be observed on Oct. 26. At the close of the program a luncheon was served at small tables decorated with Halloween decorations. The next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 11 at the home of Misses Vera and Mary Myrtle Yohn, Trimble road.

ALPHA CLASS MEETS.

Mrs. Rosa DeWitt, Helen avenue, was hostess to members of the Alpha class of the St. Matthew's Lutheran church Tuesday evening at her home. Mrs. C. C. Vermilya furnished the program, giving a talk on "Prayer", and quoting several verses from the Bible. Nine members and two guests, Miss Margaret DeWitt and Mrs. B A. McCoy of Adario, were in attendance. Mrs. J. H. Mollenkop gave a talk on "The Chinese Home." At a late hour refreshments were served at one long table decorated with chrysanthemums and tall lighted tapers. Each one received a dainty nosegay as a favor. The next meeting of the class wgill be held at the home of Mrs. E. W. Lucaugh, 221 Bowman street, Nov. 11.

EXECUTIVE MEETING.

Members of the executive board of the Johnny Appleseed junior high school P. T. A. met at the building last evening for a routine meeting. Mrs. G. C. Young conducted the session and plans were made to hold the regular P. T. A. session at the school on Oct. 28. Mrs. J. G Routzon was chosen student aid chairman of the school.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE
For Thursday, Oct. 16.

Rather a balance between adverse and propitious auguries is noted in this day's horoscope Things should be very active, with definite march upon cherished objectives of importance financially. But offsetting this may be opposition or unfriendliness from elders, relatives or strangers. In the latter contacts there may be some suddenness or surprise.

Those whose birthday it is may have business advances and financial success during the year, while at the same time some things may work at cross purposes. Strange contacts may upset schedules, and elders or relatives may prove uncooperative in some respects while offering friendliness in others.

A child born on this day should have much stability of character, despite erratic or impulsive traits It may enjoy financial success and the aid of those in high places.

CHAPTER XXVII

Dal changed the tack. He wanted to talk more about Lillian. The chance conversation here had stirred the yearning that stayed in him night and day. But it wasn't seemly just to talk about her with a colored man on a downtown street. He looked at the parcels Gus took out.

"That's Gus Holleman isn't it? You and he buying things?"

"I is. Gus ain't."

"What you buying, Jason? If it's any of my business."

"My business always my friends' business, suh. That's mostly paint and mops."

"Paint?"

"Yas suh."

"Hmmm." Dal thought to poke a little fun, maybe; in the invariable manner of white men with negroes down south. "What color, Jason? Pink?"

"Naw suh, it's baby blue, suh." Jason was serious.

"Baby blue?" Dal's curiosity was up. "How much?"

"Fo' gallons, suh."

"Judas gosh, Jason!" What are you going to do with four gallons of baby blue paint?"

"Nemmind, suh! Nemmind! I doesn't want no excite-ment!"

The old negro tipped his hat and hastened away with Gus then. Dal, half smiling still watched their car depart. Jason was up to something.

But Dal's mind cut back immediately to Lillian. Lillian Lillian. He walked up the street envisioning her. He saw her often when she brought charity cases up to his office—she had known he would welcome them and do his best for them and he admired her for her work in that. Lillian. Lillian. It seemed an incomparably beautiful name.

When he found himself alone in his office he saw that the hour was still early. Impulsively he called Lillian on the telephone.

"It's Dallas Tower," said he, without preliminary. "I've been slaving. I need to relax. I'd rather talk with you than anybody in the world. Lillian, you know that. Would it be asking too much—I mean, would you go horseback riding with me tomorrow morning? If I called early, say at 7 o'clock? It will be Sunday."

"I'm so sorry, Dal." There was that old restraint again. But then— "I—oh, Dal, yes! Yes I will!"

She suddenly changed her mind, with a whisper of elation.

Lillian had set her alarm clock for 6 a. m. but she was up by 5 30. She tip-toed down to the kitchen. She would feel better, stronger, if she ate something before leaving. Nora wasn't here yet but she found fruit in the refrigerator, and when she ate that she was still hungry.

Being hungry was an odd sensation. She was a trifle tingly this morning anyway; tingly and zestful. She turned on the oven, toasted two pieces of bread, put slices of yellow cheese on them and put them back for a minute or two. Presently the cheese was melted so as to be runny and hot. She ate both pieces almost ravenously.

"Imagine!" she murmured. "I haven't wanted to eat for days and days!"

Jason Weems saw or heard her in the kitchen so he came in to investigate. Assured that she was well provided for, he eyed her closely a moment.

"You sholy does look bright this mawnin', Miss Lillian. You feel mo' better, ma'am?"

"I feel grand, Jason. It's a lovely morning."

"Ain't no mo' lovely than we been havin' You got some plans, up this early?"

"I'm going horseback riding."

"Sho nuff?"

"Uhh hunh Now don't wake mother and Baby yet. You be quiet. I'm going up to dress for it."

"You needs me to escort you, ma'am? You aims to ride Mr. Henshaw's hosses?"

"Thank you, no, Jason Not this time."

In times past old Jason had ridden with Lillian and Baby Doll, staying 50 yards or so behind as a watchful protector. But that was before the girls "grew up," years ago in fact. Lillian smiled fondly at him. She was actually humming when she went upstairs again.

Then in her own doorway facts suddenly assailed her. She was still engaged to Thad Monroe.

The humming ceased. She went on dressing automatically. Modish riding togs she hadn't worn in months, a little bit loose now because she had lost weight lately. She glanced twice out the window. Before 6 30 she was all ready. She sat down on her bed to think.

"I have to go out with others some, to keep the secret," she told herself anew. "Thad agreed to it. And anyway I don't care!"

She felt almost defiant. She couldn't have explained the thrill of anticipation at going out with Dal Tower here at dawn. She had seen him almost every day—but that had been impersonal, during charity case work, and today was a genuine date with him! Of course it was still just an impersonal, friendly date, for exercise; just being cordial. She suddenly remembered the expensive gifts Thad had been sending her. She had them all locked in her closet or dresser, including even her engagement ring. She dismissed that thought too, however, and tip-toed downstairs again.

She saw Dal riding up the street leading her horse, and she went hastily out the side gate and down Mrs. Haltom's lawn to meet him.

"You look great this morning!" he said, and meant it. "Feeling better, aren't you?"

She blushed almost guiltily. Jason had said the same thing! She looked up at broad shouldered Dal Tower and experienced that same little breathless excitement he had caused in her when they first met weeks ago. It pushed her fiance farther back into some forgotten nook of her mind.

"Cat got your tongue?" he teased, smiling fondly.

"Oh! I was rude, wasn't I? I was thinking. Thinking that you look awfully nice yourself, Dal. Did—Did you ever consider a stage career? Dramatics in school, or anything?"

He laughed. "Judas pete! Me? I'm the bruiser type, child. Fullback, wrestling, rowing. No glamor in a town full of Towers. But go on and tell me some more. I like it."

"No. You'll be insufferable. Vanity all becomes you, sir."

They were off to a good start. Easy, free, congenial. Lillian's horse was a gaited fellow who felt zestful this morning himself, and he wanted to run. They cut off Marshall street quickly to get away from the pavement, rode down an alley and up the railroad right-of-way.

"Prettiest part of the county lies towards Buford's pond," Lillian reminded him. We can cut across G. W. L. Smith's meadow."

It was a tactful way of riding away from oil derricks and all that they connoted, including the smell. Lillian led off. Dal galloped a black mare behind her. He admired the way Lillian rode; obviously she was a born horsewoman for even her mount seemed to sense her skill.

In the Smith pasture a yearling bull showed up unexpectedly and decided to challenge the riders. He lifted his tail, pawed earth and roared "Bawr-r-r-r!" Lillian's horse backed its ears and charged right at the bull pell mell. The bull gave ground, swirled and ran.

"Tally ho, Dal!" Lillian shrieked. "See my fox?"

"Flee for your life! It may be a lion!"

The poor bull was scared silly by now. He ran to a fence and ducked hastily into brush that grew there, but Lillian's horse stretched out and took the fence in a graceful leap, disdainful of the smaller animal. Dal's own horse wouldn't jump and they had to ride a quarter-mile to a gate.

"Sissy! Sissy!" Lillian teased.

They enjoyed their play no end. When they had run until the horses were blowing a bit they settled to a walk out the old Tatum dirt road which paralleled the pavement for a ways, and in half an hour they had come to a farmer's house. The farmer was outside. He called a cheery greeting— "You all traveling or going somewhere?"

His crack brought smiles, then a pause for friendly conversation. Neither Dal nor Lillian knew his name but he said he was new in the county.

"Would it be reasonable to ask you to serve us breakfast?" Dal suddenly asked. "We're starved and there's no restaurant for miles."

"I'll ask m'wife," he said. "I'm shore she will."

To her own astonishment, Lillian did not protest. While coffee, fried ham biscuits, scrambled eggs, butter and blackberry jam were being set on the table the fruit and the cheese sandwiches she had eaten earlier this morning seemed very remote. She ate as much as Dal, which was embarrassing. Moreover everything—every little thing Dal said and every pleasantly the farm family ventured — was exceedingly gay or funny to Lillian. She laughed at the slightest provocation. Humble as the surroundings here were, simple as was this little morning adventure, she couldn't remember ever having such a grand time anywhere else.

The delightful mood did not change when they rode on. She wanted to sing and did so. Riding now at a walk, side by side, she and Dal sang together the snatches of all the songs they knew or could remember, as they ducked under low limbs of sweetgum trees, past walnuts and pines and dogwoods and oaks, over grassy pastures and up the slopes of the farm lands.

"The pond is right over yonder," Lillian pointed. "Lilies ought to be blooming. And violets."

"Violets are in your eyes," said Dal.

"Goodness! Just like high school poetry!"

"Okay, okay, cynic! I'll stick to lilies, then. Lilies for Lillian. How's that?"

"Hardly any better. I'm afraid you're a realist and not a romanticist, Dal. But I like you that way. You never delude yourself, do you?"

"Sometimes I'm afraid I do. With hopes, at any rate." He was suddenly serious. At the water edge he dismounted, took a long stick and raked in a lily bloom for her. With the same stick he smacked at inlet minnows which streaked off in fright. Out 30 feet or so a game fish leaped to catch an insect in the air, or perhaps just in sheer play spirit. Across 200 yards to the other shore, great trees were upside down in the lake in minute perfection until the waves Dal caused spread over there and gave them a new shimmering design.

Buford's pond, like Thompson's pond had been until recently, one of those countless spots of natural beauty which adorn the southland. Not spectacular scenery, but quiet, restful, gemlike lakelets in emerald settings. The spell of such a place was almost insidious this morning. Dal felt. He looked at Lillian, off her horse now and sitting with infinite grace on a fallen pine log. She was the very personification of all that was lovely and desirable. Dal trembled slightly, gritted his teeth. "Go easy! Easy!" he warned himself, silently.

To be very safe, he switched the conversation to casual, factual things.

"I was talking with my good friend Jason last night," he began, handing her the lily bloom. "You can't imagine what the old darky was doing."

"No. What, Dal?"

"He was buying paint. Gallons of baby blue paint."

"Imagine! Whatever for?"

Dal grinned in amusement. "He wouldn't say. He intimated that it might not be any of my business. He did mention that he expected to be very busy this morning, though."

THEATERS

Modern Comedy.

Back on the screen with a wardrobe as startling as anything she ever wore as a deMille heroine, Gloria Swanson is appearing opposite Adolphe Menjou in the gay comedy hit, "Father Takes a Wife," at the Ohio. As a temperamental stage star, Miss Swanson marries Menjou, a shipping magnate, and the trouble starts when the bride takes a protege into the home. John Howard plays Howard's son, who tries with his wife, Florence Rice, to hush a scandal. Neil Hamilton, Grant Withers and Grady Sutton are in the cast.

Parachute Training.

Just how the army prepares its parachute troops for that moment when they must step out of a flying plane is graphically portrayed in "Parachute Battalion," showing at the Madison. The use of psychology in modern military training is emphasized in the story that deals with four boys from varied social stratas from the time they enter the parachute service until the day they receive their decorations. Robert Preston, Nancy Kelly and Edmond O'Brien and Harry Carey are co-starred. "The Blonde from Singapore," with Florence Rice is the second attraction.

Western Thriller.

Jack Randall, the western star, is featured in an exciting role in "The Kid from Santa Fe," opening Thursday at the Ritz. In the role of a devil-may-care cowboy, Jack is drafted into service by a harrassed sheriff unable to stop smuggling on the border and aids in rounding up the gangsters. Clarene Curtis plays opposite Randall. "Manhunt," a sensational picture of a hunt that extended through many of the countries of central Europe, is the co-attraction. Walter Pidgeon and Joan Bennett are co-starred.

Romantic Drama.

"They Dare Not Love," a romance and adventure film springing from the situation in which many of the European nobility find themselves, opens at the Park tomorrow. George Brent and Martha Scott are co-starred and the cast includes Paul Lukas and Edgar Barrier. Brent plays an Austrian prince who finds refuge in America but is drawn into the struggle for freedom that has high stakes. Martha Scott appears as a fellow exile. The Range Busters are featured in "Wrangler's Roost," the second picture.

Popular Story.

Mickey Rooney is starred in "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary," showing at the Majestic with Lewis Stone, Fay Holden and Kathryn Grayson in the cast. John Shelton and Virginia Grey are featured in "Blonde Inspiration," the second attraction.

GEN. JOHNSON: British Plane Warned Greer About Sub

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—It is natural that the Russians should demand that Britain make some kind of attack on Hitler from the west or south to take off his pressure on their desperate line of resistance.

It is even natural that in both Britain and this country there is a sportsmanlike feeling that this is an obligation. But there is little of sportsmanship in war There is only brutal realism and the realism of this highminded proposal is that it is impossible.

Johnson

England is not ready for an invasion of Europe. She could make a gesture—a sort of hit-and-run raid. If it would do any ultimate good she probably would do so. Since Churchill took command, she has shown no reluctance to take desperate chances to relieve her allies. But, as in the campaign ending at Dunkirk and her desperate charge of the "light brigade" in Crete, they simply served to weaken her and strengthen her adversaries In the former case, she lost the best of her army equipment In the latter, her navy suffered more grievous wounds than at any period in this conflict.

The curse of this war has been strong nations inducing weak ones to sacrifice their existence by promises that they could not fulfill

With the loot in arms and munitions of most of Europe in Hitler's hands and with a terrific "edge" in superiority of trained and equipped troops it is doubtful whether any sortie by England in the west would cause Hitler even to pause in his eastward assault.

But a failure by England in any such abortive attempt with a consequent loss in men, ships and equipment could do much to weaken the whole British cause.

There is something of the same principle in either Britain or ourselves promising Russia whatever she requires. We haven't got the stuff and, even if we had it, how are we going to deliver it?

The transportation problems of distance and inadequacy of ships and rolling stock are enough to make any important performance simply impossible. There are only three routes, through the White sea, Vladivostok and the Persian gulf They are thousands of miles long and inadeqautely served with rail transport The first two are liable to interruption by ice and all three liable to interruption by military action.

Another idea—that we should guarantee Russia's southern borders in Asia so that she could move her troops and munitions from there to her eastern front—is equally absurd and should so appear to the Russians, first of all We have not sufficient land forces or access to that area to make such a guaranty good.

Let us and the British help the Russians all we can while they are engaging Hitler—with money, diplomatic, economic or military pressure elsewhere wherever it will do any good. But let us not, as has been so often done in this war, kid either them or ourselves with any impracticable ideas or any promise that, for sheer physical reason, cannot possibly be fulfilled.

HAILS TREATY BETWEEN U. S. AND ARGENTINA

Administration Calls It Big Diplomatic Victory Over Axis Penetration.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Signing of the first trade treaty between the United States and Argentina since 1853 was hailed today in administration circles as a major diplomatic victory over Axis efforts to penetrate the western hemisphere.

The treaty was signed last night in Buenos Aires after 10 years or more of efforts by both countries to improve trade with each other. It does not require senate ratification.

The United States and Argentina long have been trade rivals—both top dogs in their respective continents. Efforts in the past to improve trade relations have failed principally because both have large surpluses of similar farm products for export—wheat, wool, beef, corn and other foodstuffs.

Today, however, with world trade upset by war in Europe and Asia, and the threat of commercial infiltration by Germany into South America—especially Argentina—closing of the deal has political implications of great importance hidden behind the prosaic listing of trade terms, percentages and statistics of some 200 tariff items.

But this did not prevent western and midwestern senators from criticising the treaty as soon as they had learned of its provisions.

Sen. Hugh Butler, R., Neb., said producers of beef cattle, dairy products, wool and flaxseed again "are sacrificed upon the timeworn excuse of a national emergency."

But Sen. Joseph C O'Mahoney, D., Wyo., pointed out that fresh meat was not touched upon in the treaty—"a fact that will please western cattlemen."

The treaty keeps in force provisions of the 1930 tariff act which exclude fresh meat from countries in which hoof and mouth disease have been known to exist. Argentina claims that the disease has existed in only a small and unimportant section of its vast cattle country.

But the major emphasis here was upon the obvious victory for the administration's Latin American policies and belief that the treaty would be an important weapon for keeping Hitler out of one of South America's richest markets.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a message to the Argentine vice president, Dr. Ramon Castillo, said:

"In the years to come we shall look back upon the trade agreement signed today as a monument to the ways of peace, standing in sharp relief upon a desolate plain of war and destruction."

Somewhere in Mansfield there's a little girl who mailed a card to her father in a Columbus hospital which never reached him. The reason was that she forgot to put his name on the envelope or anywhere on the card so hospital attendants could identify the patient for whom it was intended The card was delivered to another Mansfielder in the hospital who said it was not his. Addressed only to Grant hospital, Columbus, the card was signed "Jean" in childish handwriting.

If you're one of those who don't believe in women's intuition, how do you explain this: A Mansfielder and his wife went to the Loudonville fair recently, and soon after their arrival, Friend Wife suggested that Friend Husband give her his money, thinking her purse was safer than his pocket. So he emptied his wallet and gave her the money. So what happened? His pocket was picked—and all the pickpocket got was an empty wallet Friend Husband now has a great deal more respect for Friend Wife.

Earl Mann, 743 West Third street, has been taking a terrific ribbing from his family the last few days because he had spent so much time polishing up his fishing tackle, and getting everything in good shape for a big day at Lake Erie, only to find when he got there every last bit of bait had been sold and that fishing, for him, was out of the question He had to return empty-handed after spending a whole day there.

NAVY REVEALS FULL STORY OF OCEAN CLASH

Contradicts Nazi Report That Ship Fired First on German U-Boat.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The navy's official account of the shooting clash between the U. S. S. Greer and a German submarine disclosed today that a report from a British patrol plane put the destroyer on the trail of the U-boat.

It also flatly contradicted the German claim that the Greer started dumping depth bombs on the submarine more than two hours before the U-boat commander loosed his first torpedo.

The navy stated that the torpedo was fired first, and eight minutes later the first depth charges went over the Greer's side

The report on the encounter in the North Atlantic was made public last night by Chairman Walsh (D., Mass.) of the senate naval committee. It was submitted in the form of a statement by Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations.

The matter-of-fact recital gave this running story of the encounter:

On Sept. 4 the Greer was ploughing along en route to Iceland with U. S. mail, passengers and some freight. She was 175 miles southwest of the island and "directly in the path of communication between American ports and Iceland"—a lane which President Roosevelt specifically ordered the navy on July 7 to keep "free of all hostile activity or threat thereof."

At 8:45 a. m. a British plane notified the Greer that a submarine was submerged 10 miles ahead directly on the course the destroyer was following.

The Greer immediately crowded on speed and zigzagged her way to the location reported. At 9:20, five minutes after reaching the vicinity, the destroyer's underwater sound detector equipment picked up the propeller beat of the submerged U-boat and started to trail it, broadcasting the submarine's position.

Thus, said Stark, "was in accordance with her orders, that is, to give out information but not to attack."

No further assistance, meanwhile, came from the patrol plane, which later dropped four unsuccessful depth charges and withdrew from the hunt.

The Greer clung tenaciously to the trail of its quarry for 3 hours and 28 minutes, always maneuvering to keep the U-boat ahead of it.

Then at 12.40 p. m., the submarine changed course and closed on the Greer.

At 12:48 an air bubble broke the surface of the sea not far from the Greer—a sign that a torpedo had been fired. The aim was bad, however, and the torpedo passed 100 yards astern of the destroyer

At 12.56 the Greer counter-attacked with eight depth charges. The German comunique on Sept. 6 claimed that the depth charges were dropped at 12:30 but the U-boat held its fire until 2:19).

The track of the second torpedo was sighted 500 yards away at 12:58 in time for the Greer to maneuver out of its way. This time the Greer sent 11 depth charges hurtling into the sea, but without observing any signs that would indicate a hit.

During this attack a British destroyer was in sight five miles away and inquired if the U. S. vessel wished to conduct a coordinated hunt for the U-boat. The Greer answered: "No," and the Britisher left the scene.

The Greer continued its search until 6 p m, and then resumed its voyage to Iceland.

A Lady Exits: Every light on the Gay White Way was a bright hard tear the night they learned from the black type of the early morning papers that Helen Morgan would never again sigh across footlights and softly sing the words of "Why Was I Born?"

I don't think anyone who knew her expected her to live to be very old, but that only made the sadness more poignant in the little corners of Broadway where they always knew it would come this way to her.

She was no headline-wise show woman who knew that benefits and charities properly exploited would make her more famous and better loved. She did her giving the quiet way, and she kept giving until there was nothing left, even for her.

They still talk about the cold Winter night when Helen, seeing a little dancer going out the stage door shivering in a thin Spring coat, took off her ermine coat and gave it to the little dancer and went home wearing the thin Spring coat herself.

And there was another night at the Stork Club when Helen sat in the powder room and cried because it was Christmas Eve and the maid had to spend Christmas Eve working. Helen was sorry she couldn't do much, but she did give the maid a one-hundred-dollar bill.

That was the way she was. There was something in her that always made her want, ever so wistfully, to wave a small wand and make a glittering Christmas tree appear for someone else.

ARIAS GOES TO JAIL IN PANAMA

Police Meet Former President as He Arrives In Country Following Surrender.

(By Associated Press)

PANAMA—Dr. Arnulfo Arias, ousted president of Panama, reached Panama early today and was locked up in the city jail after surrendering to Panama police in the Canal Zone.

Five vans filled with police met the special motor railway car in which Dr. Arias journeyed to the capital from Cristobal where he had surrendered from aboard the steamer Cefalu.

As the motorcade left the railway station, the ousted president stuck his head out of a window and shouted: "Via Panama!" (long live Panama!)

Dr. Arias flew to Cuba on Tuesday Oct. 7. He claimed he had only gone to Havana to consult an eye specialist, but a new government, which Ricardo Adolfo de la Guardia as president, took the helm in a peaceful coup d'etat and immediately pledged cooperation with the United States in defense matters.

Arias' flight had followed by a day his issuance of an order against arming of merchantmen under the Panama flag.

The deposed president, returning voluntarily, reached the Canal Zone early yesterday but it was not until shortly before midnight that he stepped onto the pier at Cristobal to surrender to Rogelio Fabrega, New Panama national police chief.

Earlier the de la Guardia government had announced it would permit him to take up exile in neighboring Costa Rica.

Whether a plan to allow him to leave for Costa Rica later this morning would be adhered to was not immediately clear as the former president was whisked away to jail.

MRS. H. F. LEPPERT, PROMINENT IN SOCIAL CIRCLES, SUCCUMBS

Prominent in Mansfield civic and social affairs, Mrs. Harold F Leppert, 40 of 455 Woodward avenue, died Tuesday afternoon at Mansfield General hospital following an illness of several weeks.

She was active in many social and civic organizations in the city and was affiliated with the First Presbyterian church. She had served as Cradle roll teacher at the church and was a member of the Capt. Stevenson Sunday school class.

Mrs. Leppert, the former Louise Lucille Weber, is survived by her husband, a daughter, Joanne Lucille, two sons, Harold Neil and John Robert, all at home, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Weber of Galion; two sisters, Mrs D. E. Quiller of Tiffin and Mrs. William L. Goshorn of Galion, and five brothers, William of Buffalo, Neil of Springfield, Emmett of Fort Wayne, Ind., Merl of Galion and Wayne of Cleveland.

She was born in Galion on April 30, 1901, the daughter of Claude and Minnie Weber. She was graduated from the Galion high school. Until she was confined to the hospital she had been working on the P. T. A. drive for Brinkerhoff school as their membership chairman, and was serving on the hospitality committee of the Johnny Appleseed Junior high school P. T. A. She and her husband were the co-chairmen of the Pandora Dancing club for this season

The body was removed to the Jones Memorial where funeral services will be held Thursday at 3 p. m. with Rev. D N. Roller of the First Presbyterian church in charge. Burial will be in Memorial Park.

Cycle Plant at Shelby Waits on OPM Shift Order

The OPM may turn to the Shelby Cycle company plant and other bicycle manufacturers in Ohio in its campaign against unemployment due to defense priorities, Edward L Keenan, Cleveland, regional labor supply officer for Ohio, announced today.

Officials of the Shelby Cycle company, one of the largest industries of its kind in the nation, said they had received no official notice today of the plan to divert the plant to defense production, but they understood the OPM would survey the plant within a few days.

Keenan said other bicycle plants in Elyria and Dayton would be included in the survey as the OPM labor supply committee attempts to find a solution to the unemployment problem facing the Mansfield area and other Ohio communities.

The survey will help the labor committee to determine what products, if any, could be made at the bicycle plants with little loss of time and a minimum dislocation of employment.

—Officials of the Shelby firm said the plant now makes nothing directly concerned with national defense, but it probably could be diverted to the production of certain materials essential to defense industries.

It is well known to one and all that Massillon is the high school football capital of the state of Ohio, and that Massillon scouts are apt to be in the stands whenever one of their opponents goes to the gridiron wars.

It can also be assumed that what the Massillon scouts learn in their visits to high school stadia here and there over the state may be reflected in the opinion which the Massillon newspaper acquires regarding the strength regarding the strength of other Ohio high school teams.

So the following item from the Massillon Independent may be regarded as coming straight from the feed box:

"Mansfield rolled on over Newark to chalk up a 31 to 0 victory and ESTABLISH ITSELF AS THE LEADING CHALLENGER TO THE TIGERS' STATE TITLE.

"Tickets for the Mansfield game were placed on sale here Saturday, and MORE WERE DISPOSED OF IN THE FIRST FOUR HOURS THAN WERE SOLD IN ANY THREE DAYS FOR PREVIOUS GAMES."

That's the way they feel about the Tygers in Massillon. Somebody musta told 'em.

I'm informed that Chet Mutryn, the Cleveland boy who is leading Ohio college gridders in scoring with 57 points as a backfield ace for Xavier, is a brother of Eddie the Mighty Man Mutryn who led the Ohio State league in home runs this past season as a Mansfield Brave.

This relationship is a subject about which I had wondered for several weeks, but I didn't know it for sure until President George Satterlee of the Braves broke down and confessed that it was so.

After taking a peek at the muscles of Eddie the Mighty Man, it should surprise no one that some one in the Mutryn family is a football player.

But Chet, according to Satterlee, is not the Mutryn brother who played in the Cleveland Bartunek outfield last summer, and is now rated as an even better baseball prospect than Eddie the Mighty Man. That Mutryn may find himself in a Mansfield uniform next summer if the Ohio State league doesn't collapse.

It seems that Eddie the Mighty Man
Is just one of the Mighty Mutryn Clan.

Carl Hartman, who does a bit of traveling here and there, tells me he stopped in Fremont a few days back and engaged in a bit of chit-chat with Chappie Geygan, manager of the Fremont Green Sox.

The talk drifted around to the Mansfield-Fremont high school grid game here on Turkey day and, says Geygan:

"You'll have to give us 30 points if you want any of our money."

ZIVIC REPLACES FREDDY COCHRANE

NEW YORK (INS)—Fritzie Zivic, who lost the world's welterweight title to Red Cochrane last July, today was scheduled to replace the champion in his scheduled 10-rounder with Ray Robinson in Madison Square Garden Oct. 31.

Cochrane refused to go through with the scheduled bout unless the New York State Athletic Commission reinstated his manager Willie Gilzenberg who was suspended for counseling his fighter to hold off in a match with Lew Jenkins.

INJURY ENDS FREMONT GRIDDER'S CAREER

MILWAUKEE—(AP)—The Marquette gridiron career of Freddy Rice was ended today. The Fremont fullback suffered torn ligaments in his left knee in the Marquette-Michigan State game Saturday and his leg has been placed in a cast.

Rice, a senior, scored a touchdown and an extra point as Tom Sudham's team defeated Wisconsin, 28-7.

Buckeyes Fear High Rating

Brown Warns Underdog Boilermakers Tough.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Paul Brown and his Ohio State Buckeyes must look ahead with considerable apprehension toward games with Northwestern and Michigan, and with mild relief at games with Illinois, Wisconsin and Pittsburgh. But Saturday's tilt with Purdue is the one that could prove a real stumbling block.

Deep in their hearts, the Buckeye coaching staff and team probably think they can knock the pants off Purdue this week, inasmuch as the Boilermakers have lost to Vanderbilt, 3-0, and beaten puny Pitt only 6-0 in their two starts. But the high rating which Ohio State victories over Missouri and Southern California have brought makes everyone in Columbus just a little uneasy.

In addition to having trouble getting his Purdue offense in gear, Coach Mal Elward has been beset by injuries at Lafayette, and these two facts have helped make Ohio State the favorite. But the injury gaps are being plugged in the Boilermaker lineup. Whether the offensive spark is being fanned is another question.

It's entirely possible Elward may be able to use nine of the 11 men who opened against the Buckeyes last year—a game which Ohio State won 17-14. He has Fullback John Petty, Halfbacks Marion Carter and Tony Berto, and a line brimming with capable performers like Herman Timperman, Bill Cross, Italo Rossi and two fine guards, Co-Captains Jim Miller and Tom Melton.

The Buckeyes have worked out under the floodlights a couple of times since they got back from beating Southern California and Coach Brown is watching his charges so carefully that he pulled them out of the rain yesterday and made them take a rough workout indoors.

* * *

Brown has warned the Buckeyes that "Purdue will be tougher than either Missouri or Southern Cal" in an effort to avoid any letdown in his squad. His warnings are similar to those Bernie Bierman dished out to the Minnesota team last week just before it flattened Illinois, 31-6.

PRACTICE PASSES

Michigan feels it has a fine running attack again this year, but the passing admittedly is something for worry. . . . Against Pitt Tom Kuzma tried seven forwards: One, a shovel pass, lost ground; a second was completed on interference; two were good the other two were intercepted, the other two wre intercepted. . . . Coach Lynn Waldorf decided yesterday that among the hangers-on at Northwestern practice there might be some spies, so all except those with credentials were barred—for the first time this year.

Baker-Windsor Again Lead Loop

"Break up the Yankees," is the cry in the mixed doubles bowling league at Colony alleys. Margaret Baker and Clarence Windsor, who are to this league what the Yankees are to baseball, again led the loop last night with a 1010 total.

Miss Baker led both the men and women with a 537 total on games of 189-191-157, and her 191 was high game.

LINE CHANGED

EVANSTON, Ill.—(INS)—Several line changes and one in the backfield today marked Coach Lynn Waldorf's efforts to find the best possible combination for Northwestern's important conference battle with Michigan on Saturday. One line shift pushed Don Johnson into the No. 1 center spot over Gene Mundy. In the backfield, Ike Kepford was given the call at right half over Capt. Tuffy Chambers.

Wildcats Prep For Mansfield

McDonald Recalls 1933 Victory Over Tygers.

SPRINGFIELD — Coach Jim McDonald of the undefeated Springfield high Wildcats, has dreams today of repeating a state championship performance of 1933 when, as a senior, he led Springfield to the mythical state high school title in a 20 to 0 victory over Mansfield in a post season game.

* * *

McDonald takes his Wildcats to Mansfield Friday night for a clash between two undefeated elevens, and believes that if his team can get past the Mansfield hurdle it should go on through the season undefeated.

The former Wildcat and Ohio State star was far from pleased with the showing Springfield made last Saturday night in edging their traditional rival, Dayton Stivers, 9 to 0.

Stivers hadn't won a game since 1939, and had dropped two decisions this fall before meeting the Wildcats, and Springfield fans had visions of a big score against the Gem City aggregation in retaliation for similar humiliations heaped on the Wildcats in years past.

The 9 to 0 count, with the lone touchdown scored by a substitute fullback, and two points donated by a bad pass from a substitute Dayton center, was far below the hopes of the Springfield fans, and McDonald expressed himself as not too well pleased.

"But," said McDonald, "as long as the boys had that one bad game in their systems, I'm glad they got it out against a weak opponent. I think we'll give Mansfield's Tygers a real run for their money this week."

GEORGIA PLACE KICKER HOLDS TEAM HOPES

ATHENS, Ga.—(AP)—Although Leo Costa hasn't played an official second of college football, he has scored plenty of points and is one of Georgia's chief hopes for victory Saturday over Columbia in New York. But if he wins the game, he won't see it done. He'll be picking up an imaginary half-dollar.

Costa, a junior, is a place-kicking specialist. His job is booting extra points after touchdowns, and counting his senior year in high school he has kicked 54 out of 64. Because time is suspended during a try-for-point, he is credited with no action in competition.

Junior Highs and Reserves Booked

Mansfield's two junior high schools and the senior high school reserve team all have football games scheduled this week.

* * *

Johnny Appleseed opens the firing this afternoon at Madison high gridiron, meeting the Madison high reserves at 3:30.

* * *

Tomorrow afternoon the Tyger reserves go to Willard for a game with the reserve team there.

Friday afternoon at senior high school field John Simpson will meet Butler at 4 o'clock.

PASSING STRESSED.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(INS)—Pass offense was stressed today at the University of Michigan football workout as the Wolverines prepared for Saturday's tilt against Northwestern. Sophomore Halfbacks Tom Kuzma and Southpaw Paul White are expected to handle the passing chores against the undefeated Wildcats.

TEXAS ST. MARY'S CLUB MUST HIKE BOX OFFICE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(AP)—Analogous to the heroine striving to keep the mortgage from sweeping away her old pappy's all, the footballers of St. Mary's are figuratively ready to die for their college.

They must earn $25,000 this season or intercollegiate athletics will become only a fond memory at the school.

Joe Considers Enlistment

Probably Would Go as Draftee In Six Weeks.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, apparently scheduled to be inducted into the army as a draftee within six weeks, may enlist before that time, it was reported today.

Reports that the Brown Bomber may not wait to be drafted arose from his known preference for the aviation service. As a draftee, he would not have the choice of service given to enlisted men.

Neither Louis nor Julian Black, one of his co-managers, would say whether the champion would volunteer or would wait until he is called.

Louis was examined at length by army doctors yesterday, and although no official result of the test was announced, indications were he had been given a clean bill of health, as expected.

Black made it clear that Joe's expected turn in the army will not end his reign as champion. Louis has given no thought to retiring, Black said, and will be ready to defend his crown against the best available challenger whenever he is free to do so, probably some time next year. Black agreed that when Louis next lays his title on the line, it probably will be against Billy Conn.

GOLDEN GLOVE CHAMPION JAILED FOR FIGHTING

NORWALK—(AP)—John Peart, 27, Chicago truck driver and former Golden Gloves champion there, is serving a 30-day jail sentence for fisticuffing with another driver.

He pleaded guilty before Common Pleas Judge E. G. Martin, who imposed the jail sentence and a $50 fine yesterday. He was charged with assaulting Lewis Kuhn, of Norwalk, after their two vehicles had collided on route 20 last week.

FORMER BUCK TACKLE SIGNS WITH NAVY

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Charles Maag of Sandusky, former Ohio State tackle, is a chief boatswain's mate in the naval reserve now.

He signed up at the naval recruiting station yesterday and soon will be sent to Norfolk, Va., to participate in a six week athletic program before being assigned to a naval base or station. He recently passed an examination conducted by Lieut. Commander Gene Tunney.

Wanted: One 100-Yard-Long Smooth, But Vacant Field

By BUD SPRUNGER
(News-Journal Sports Writer)

If any Mansfielder should happen upon a smooth, vacant field about 120 yards long, and equipped with bleachers for the convenience of those who would like to watch independent football, he could do James Orr a great favor by reporting the discovery to him.

Since early fall Orr has been managing a 145-pound grid team for the Eagles and claims to have a squad just about ready to play a bang-up brand of ball. There's just one hitch. They've no place to play.

* * *

The lightweight team has been practicing every night at the Richland county fairground, but that field is not suitable for grid games and has no bleachers for spectators.

The stands which occupied the field last summer for the benefit of the Mansfield Braves have been moved to the high school for Tyger spectators.

The rest of the situation seems well in hand, Orr says. The team has been practicing and can find other teams ready to play, but not in Mansfield because of the lack of a field.

Right now club managers are dickering with the "Skippies," a lightweight Cleveland squad, and are confident of a game there. However, the Cleveland squad would like to play a home and home series with the Mansfield club and the Mansfield team has no home.

Madison high school has allowed the City News pro team to use its field this fall, but this has been more or less as an experiment. School officials want to determine if the extra play will damage the turf before throwing it open.

* * *

Senior high school field is controlled by the school board and the board is loath to allow the turf to receive more trampling than the Tygers give it.

* * *

Orr said Loudonville high school had nothing against the use of its field, but lately the wet weather had liquidated the field and extra play would probably damage it.

Failing to find a field this season, Orr is concentrating on next and said that he feels sure a league of Ohio 145-pound teams can be formed.

So far he's contacted clubs in Toledo, Cleveland, Akron, Canton and Columbus and from his findings believes that a circuit representing all of these towns can be formed next year—if Mansfield finds a field.

Pro Football Offers Stars

Harmon and Kimbrough Join American Squad.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Professional football turns back the clock this week with the experiment that is to introduce Tommy Harmon, Michigan's all everything, and "Jarring John" Kimbrough at the Yankee stadium on Sunday as members of the New York Americans.

Big "names" are to be used as the customer lure instead of the organized competition of a pennant campaign. It was that way 15 years ago when "Red" Grange first sold the play-for-pay game to the New York addicts.

* * *

With this splash on Sunday the backers of the American League reveal for the first time an appreciation of what it takes to introduce a venture that has big league pretentions. It represents something at least approximating promotional vision and enterprise, qualities woefully lacking in the league's previous attempts to win recognition hereabouts.

Backs Face Line's Play

Michigan Line Set To Battle Wildcat Backs.

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — Michigan's tremendous line and Northwesterns' tremendous backs make the first showdown of the Big Ten football campaign as near a standoff as the league will see all fall. Victory will go to the team that seizes the breaks.

This is the first of three games involving Michigan, Northwestern and Minnesota which probably will isetttle the championship.

Although neither Michigan nor Northwestern has been tested fully enough to lay claim to greatness, it's on the record that Michigan has played three games with only one defensive error and Northwestern never has failed to capitalize on an enemy mistake in its two games.

Favorites of the week are Ohio State over Purdue, Iowa over Wisconsin, Nebraska over Indiana, and Illinois over Drake.

PAM, I'M GOING TO ENLIST! THEY NEED MEN. MAYBE I'LL BE SOME GOOD IN THE ARMY. AT LEAST IT'LL KEEP ME SO BUSY I CAN QUIT WORRYING OVER WHO I AM!
ALLEN, DO YOU REALLY MEAN IT?
YES, I DO! I'LL BE PRIVATE ALLEN MASON AND I'LL WORK HARD TO BE A GOOD SOLDIER! COURSE, I MAY NOT BE ABLE TO GET IN; HAVE TO FAKE MY HISTORY, AGE, ETC., BUT I GUESS THAT'S PARDONABLE!
10-15
POOR FELLOW! MAYBE HE'S RIGHT... BUT HE'LL HAVE NO OPPORTUNITY THEN TO TRY TO WORK OUT HIS PROBLEM!
JUST THEN A RING ON THE TELEPHONE

SAVES SHAKERS

NEW ORLEANS—(U.P.)—Mrs. Don L. Harwell's hobby is collecting salt and pepper shakers, and she has 271 different sets in her cupboard.

But there's one thing Mrs. Harwell cannot understand about the shakers made in forms of human figures.

"Why is it that the woman is always the pepper pot and the man the salt?" she asks.

HUDSON SHAD THRIVE

ALBANY, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Near extinction five years ago, the famed Hudson river shad this year are expected to provide the largest catches in a quarter century. Fishermen predict they will haul out 4,000,000 pounds, worth $250,000.

NEED $100? HERE'S WHAT TO DO

Tell us how much you need, $20 to $500; how much you can repay monthly; and answer a few simple questions.

Loans made three ways: (1) on signature; (2) on car; (3) on furniture. No endorsers. Friends or relatives are not told. Fair treatment in case of sickness or unemployment. Payments include charges of 2% monthly on balances of $300 or less and ½% monthly on any remainder—the same rate to everyone. Nothing else to pay. To apply—phone, write or visit office. Money ready next day—or sooner if necessary.

TRADERS KEEP EYES GLUED ON RUSSIAN NEWS

Tiny Turnover Sees Stocks Take Irregular To Lower Course.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Traders kept their eyes on Russian war bulletins today and stocks followed an irregular course to slightly lower levels.

The turnover as the second hour approached was tiny. Some of the traditional leaders failed to open during the first hour

Many issues moved at prices unchanged from yesterday as operators looked unsuccessfully for news which would indicate any change from he domestic and world situation which has been maintained for a week.

Some brokers reported short interests in a variety of shares were considerably increased. Growing defense labor problems heightened pessimism.

Holders of industrial investments were cheered by the Washington announcement that producers in non-defense lines would be given special consideration in the distribution of government contracts. It was indicated that armament orde s would be spread on a broader base of companies.

Followers of railroad securities noted the warning by the National Association of Manufacturers that freight car construction was lagging behind the projected needs of the carriers.

Quick Relief From Pile Irritation

30 years ago a Buffalo druggist created an ointment for relief from the itching and smarting of Piles. It brought such quick cooling, soothing, astringent relief that its fame spread throughout the country, and made Peterson's Ointment a favorite in thousands of homes. Ask your druggist for a 35c box of Peterson's Ointment today, or 60c tube with applicator. Money back if you are not delighted with relief.

LIVERINE HAS GIVEN MORE RELIEF THAN ANYTHING ELSE, USERS SAY TWO TO ONE

Suffered For Years With Chronic Constipation. Couldn't Sleep Because of Nervousness. Gives a Hearty Recommendation to Liverine.

"I had trouble with my liver for years," declares Mrs. Lucy Philipp, of 241 Benner St., Tiffin, Ohio.
"I also was constipated and took different things for this ailment. I was so tired and draggy that I wanted to sit down and do nothing. I had no life or ambition. I had terrible headaches and my nerves were on edge so I couldn't stand the least bit of noise. Nervousness bothered my sleep and I was so tired in the morning that I didn't seem to have a bit of rest. When I was constipated my appetite lost its keenness. If I took a few bites of food, I bloated with gas, causing indigestion and made me feel terrible. If I ate onions or tomatoes, I had real distress in my stomach.

MRS. LUCY PHILLIP

"Liverine relieved the above troubles so that now I feel energetic and can work better and I certainly feel better. I don't believe I could do my housework now, if I hadn't taken Liverine. I feel stronger and just like a new person.
"My kidneys also were not working right and I had such pains in my back that I could hardly stand. I also took Bee Bee's which helped my kidneys and ended other distress. I heartily recommend Liverine and Bee Bee's to everyone."

LEARN THE TRUTH ABOUT
BOWEL WORMS
The signs are misleading.
Nobody is sure to escape.
Worms can make real trouble.
Anybody, anywhere, can "catch" roundworms! So watch out for these signs in your child or yourself: uneasy stomach, nose-picking, loss of weight, itchy seat, nervousness.
Get Jayne's Vermifuge if you even suspect roundworms. It expels stubborn worms, yet acts very gently. If there are no worms, it works just as a mild laxative. Jayne's is America's best known proprietary worm medicine; scientifically tested and used by millions for over a century. So, play safe! Insist on Jayne's Vermifuge.

PHYSICIANS HIT EMASCULATION

cal association, said it was his personal opinion that emasculation "would not materially alter the problem."

Dr. H. O. Bratton of Columbus, a genito-urinary practitioner, said that "the effect of castration is a much disputed point among medical men." But Dr. William M. Taylor of the Ohio State university medical school said that in cases he had known, "sex desire was stopped by castration."

Church leaders were unanimous in denouncing such operations upon prisoners.

Rev. Fr. A. M. Fitzpatrick, editor of the Catholic Universe Bulletin, Cleveland diocese publication, said that the Catholic church "absolutely forbids an operation of that kind."

Rev. Robert Tucker, Columbus Methodist pastor, said he thought that "the parole board is setting an exceedingly dangerous precedent" and that "a matter of public policy should be determined by the legislature."

Rev. M. H. Lichliter, pastor of the First Congregational church of Columbus, said:

"I have always advocated some form of sterilization or castration in sex crimes but such an operation will not stop repetition of the offense. It merely limits the possibility of reproduction. The seat of the crime is psychological. A parole must be based on changed character of the criminal, not upon a single act such as a castration."

State Rep. George B. Marshall, Republican, Columbus, said he would not oppose the penitentiary's policy. "It removes a menace to society," he said.

tri-partite conference in Moscow, who is now on his way home.

While General Marshall refrained from forecasts on the outcome of the current Nazi bid for victory in Russia, he was reported to have told the Senate committee that those who were evaluating the long-range effects of the current campaign found encouragement in the fact that the bitter fighting was using up German war equipment rapidly.

In this connection, the chief of staff was said to have urged the committee to speed its consideration of the proposed appropriation, asserting that the acceleration of American armament production for nations fighting Hitlerism was bound to have its effect in shortening the war.

The committee also was informed yesterday that the Soviet Union thus far has paid cash for the supplies which President Roosevelt said were
